Fund Tells Lineup For Coming Drive

Ed Grigg To Direct Campaign; Other Agencies Again Invited

The Pickaway County Community Fund today announced its top leadership for the fall campaign and again invited other local agencies to join in the plan of one big annual drive for health and welfare contributions.

The fund organization now consists of five groups. In renewing its invitation to other agencies, it stressed the saying that can be achieved in the efforts of individual drive workers and the convenience for those willing to donate financial support.

George Roth, president of the fund's board of trustees, officially announced the election of Ed Grigg as general chairman of the 1956 campaign, led "over the top" last year by Dr. G. D. Phillips.

Roy Marshall has been designated campaign vice chairman. Marshall will have charge of solicitation work in the county areas outside Circleville. Others named to help lead this year's drive include:

MRS. GEORGE Barnes, vice-chairman of solicitation for Circleville's residential, school, professional and public employee groups; Larry Varble, vice-chairman of solicitation for business, industry, banking and other organizational groups in Circleville, and

Jim Carr, vice-chairman in charge of publicity, public information supplies and activities of the speakers bureau.

Headed by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adkins, the speakers bureau is contacting groups throughout Pickaway County for an opportunity to have spokesmen go before the various organizations and explain the fund's policy and program.

Agencies now covered by fund are: Pickaway County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Pickaway County Youth Canteen. The fund, in its statement, said:

"These agencies were the original group participating in last year's successful campaign. Other health and welfare agencies that can qualify and are operating in the county have been again invited to participate, with emphasis on the saving of efforts of those who solicit and making it easier for those who wish to give in many cases where payroll deduction or quarterly billing is preferred."

Advance solicitations for the fund this year will be launched in September, with final home solicitations being scheduled for the following month.

Spotlight Turns To Republicans Out In Frisco

GOP Convention Set To Start Monday; Nix-Nixon Move Eyed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republicans grabbed the political football from the Democrats today, confident their Eisenhower-Nixon combination can out-vote the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket chosen in Chicago by the Democrats.

GOP leaders said privately they were impressed with the "open" convention choice of Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee as the vice-presidential running mate of former Illinois Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

The Democrats focused attention on the vice presidential candidates by picking Kefauver in an open convention.

In Los Angeles, on his way here to seek re-nomination, Vice President Richard Nixon said Eisenhower is strong enough to carry the country regardless of who runs with him.

Harold Stassen, on a political vacation from his job as Eisenhower's disarmament assistant to plug for someone else to replace Nixon, arrived saying he was gaining ground.

Stassen espoused the almost hopeless task of displacing Nixon as the GOP's No. 2 man with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts.

Dems Forgive And Forget All Now 'Madly For Adlai'

Kefauver Voted No 2 Dem Spot

CHICAGO (AP)—Homespun Estes Kefauver, frustrated twice in seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, today was on his party's national ticket as its vice-presidential nominee.

His victory yesterday was hard-won. He beat out youthful Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts on a second convention ballot after frantic floor maneuvering and last minute delegation vote switches.

The final count: Kefauver, Tennessee's senior senator, 755 1/2; Kennedy, 589.

On Kennedy's motion, the Kefauver nomination was made unanimous. However, there was grumbling in the South, Kefauver's native area which had flocked en masse to Kennedy.

But in Convention Hall last night, there were no open signs of disunity as Kefauver got a big ovation in telling the shouting, standard-waving delegates he was ready to fight alongside presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson "four our party and its causes."

Kefauver's acceptance speech was delivered in the slow, sometimes halting manner that had become familiar to voters in all parts of the land during his tireless but unsuccessful campaigns for the presidential nomination in 1952 and again this year. Both times, he lost to Stevenson.

The tone Kefauver used was mild, but the words he aimed at Vice President Nixon were barbed. With-out mentioning the GOP vice president by name, Kefauver said he will "never demean that high office to traduce fellow Americans, to sow division and distrust."

This was an obvious reference to Democratic claims that Nixon, during the 1948 congressional campaign, impugned the loyalty of the Democratic party.

As Stevenson and Kefauver stood together before the convention, there was no trace of the personal rancor that marked their furious rivalry for delegate votes in a series of primaries last spring, particularly in Florida and California.

Kefauver spoke of Stevenson's "unusual gifts of intellect and wit" and Stevenson repaid the compliment, calling Kefauver "an honorable and able American."

They both jokingly complimented each other's fighting ability demonstrated in primary battles, won mostly by Stevenson.

In yesterday's neck-and-neck balloting, the 32 votes of Tennessee, his home state, went first to Kefauver's Senate colleague, Albert Gore. Later, they were cast for Kefauver.

Of the 334 convention votes cast by 12 Southern states, Kefauver got only 59 on the clinching roll call. Besides Tennessee, Kefauver votes came from only North Carolina and Florida. He got not a single vote from Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and Texas.

Kefauver promised to return to Ohio for the campaign. He captured half of Ohio's delegates to the 1952 convention that nominated Stevenson for president.

Party leaders said Stevenson also planned to campaign in Ohio. He barn-stormed the state four years ago.

DiSalle came to the convention

DiSalle, best known as former OPA price controller, expressed belief that farm interest, added to Democratic strength in most big cities, would put nominally Republican Ohio in the Democratic column next fall.

Acid-Throwing Boss Is Sought

NEW YORK (AP)—Authorities probed deeper today in a search for the underworld mastermind of the acid attack that blinded the labor columnist.

FBI agents cracked most of the once baffling case yesterday when they seized two ex-convicts. Four other arrests followed.

But the shadowy figure who put up the money to finance the attack apparently was still at large.

The FBI said the wanton assault against Riesel sought to prevent the crusading newspaperman from telling a federal grand jury about labor racketeering.

None of those arrested was linked by police with Labor.

The hoodlum who hurled sulfuric acid into Riesel's eyes April 5 was slain last month with a bullet in his brain, the FBI said.

The slain man, Abraham Telvi, 22, was assassinated, police said, because some of the acid splashed on his face. The scars made him a marked man, "too hot" for the underworld.

He was said to have collected $1,000 for the attack.

The two ex-convicts under arrest are Joseph P. Carino, 43, and Gondolfo Miranti, 37.

Authorities said Carino was the front man for whoever arranged the attack. He was said to have received $180 to $200 persuading someone to fling the acid.

Miranti, the FBI said, pointed out the 41-year-old columnist to Telvi outside a cafe here.

Carino and Miranti were held in bonds of $100,000 each on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice. If convicted, they face a maximum of five years in prison.

Telvi's brother, Leo, 26, was held in $100,000 bail as a material witness. So was Mrs. Norma Carino, described by police as Carino's common-law wife.

In Ohio, FBI agents arrested George Moore, 41, and his wife Della, 42, as material witnesses. The government claimed Telvi hid out for a time at the Moore's Youngstown home.

Truce team members said nine Egyptian soldiers were killed in two Israeli attacks Thursday night inside the Egyptian-held Gaza strip. Gunfire was reported continuing yesterday. Egypt earlier charged Israel with the attacks.

The violence followed by a day a complaint from Israel that three Israeli soldiers and a woman were killed in an ambush of a bus in the Negev Desert southeast of the Gaza strip.

Truce supervisors were preparing a report on the outbreaks at the request of U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who negotiated the cease fire that eased fighting last April.

At his headquarters in New York, Hammarskjold warned both Egypt and Israel to avoid retaliatory attacks in violation of their ceasefire pledges.

Pinching Shoes Being Pilfered From Library

LONDON (AP)—The word to the reader at London's Kensington public library today wasn't "quiet." It was "Keep your shoes on and tightly laced."

Thursday a man slipped his shoes off while reading in the reference room. When he started to leave, he found the shoes gone.

Police were inclined to dismiss the incident as a joke, however, because the man gave a fictitious address.

But yesterday John Craine, 67, retired sea captain, settled down in the same room to peruse a book on model ships. His shoes were snug. He eased them off.

Time passed and the captain reached down for his shoes. Finding nothing but the floor, he summoned a librarian.

"Some blighter has pinched my shoes," reported the captain.

"Yes sir," replied the librarian, "we have heard that one already."

"I'm not joking," said Craine, poking his stocking feet from under the table.

National Ticket Seen As Help In Rural Area For Ohio Dems

CHICAGO (AP)—Ohio delegates to the Democratic convention said today the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket will help the party's November election drive in rural areas.

The 70-member, 58-vote delegation played a key role in the nomination of Adlai Stevenson for President and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee for vice president at the five-day political show which ended last night.

"Our delegation is going home very happy," said Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo, the nominee for governor to succeed Frank J. Lausche. Lausche, rounding out five terms as governor, is running for U. S. senator.

"Kefauver will strengthen us immeasurably in Ohio, where we were the weakest in our appeal to the farmer," DiSalle added.

"The farm problem is a primary issue in Ohio and the Tennessee senator has an excellent record on which to appeal to the people in rural areas."

'We Will Win' Is Stevenson's New Battle Cry

Delegates Hear 1956 Candidate Call For End To GOP 'Drifting'

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats, in a forgive-and-forget windup to their national convention, lined up behind Adlai E. Stevenson's "We will win" pledge to throw the Republicans out of Washington.

The delegates had been fighting one another all week, but they put on a big unity demonstration last night in the Stockyards International Amphitheater.

They cheered and applauded Stevenson, their presidential nominee, as he called for an end to "aimless drifting" in Washington and promised a campaign looking toward a "great, decisive era" of world progress.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who won a close and dramatized race with Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the vice-presidential nomination, shared the center of the stage with Stevenson.

Former President Harry S. Truman, who has had harsh things to say in the past about both the nominees, tacitly apologized to Stevenson for saying the 1952 nominee "can't win" over President Eisenhower in November.

ALMOST EVERYBODY who was anybody in the Democratic party got into the harmony act before the show was over.

This was in contrast to hectic days before in which Truman backed Gov. Averell Harriman of New York for the nomination and tossed brickbats at Stevenson.

As the star of the televised presentation, Stevenson laid down the pattern of an aggressive campaign to sell a "new America."

It will be a land, he said, "where poverty is abolished, where freedom is made real for all without regard to race or belief or economic condition" and a new order "which everlastingly attacks the ancient idea that men can solve their differences by killing each other."

For the political problems of the day, Stevenson had some observations after 19 minutes of uproarious greeting by a convention that hadn't done much all-out cheering previously.

Stevenson told Truman, "I am glad to have you on my side again, sir."

Truman had touched off waves of laughter by saying earlier that "Some stupid fellow I won't name" had been predicting Stevenson couldn't beat Eisenhower.

Characterizing Stevenson as a "real fighter" although earlier in the week he had been saying the reverse, Truman told the delegates.

Ohio Hog Prices Holding Steady

COLUMBUS (AP)—Prices for hogs remained generally steady during the week except in Central Ohio where average prices were up 15 to 25 cents from the previous week.

The Bureau of Markets of the Ohio Department of Agriculture reported sow prices continued to improve over last week. Wholesale fresh pork prices showed some improvement Friday, although the trend was not reflected in live prices.

Receipts at the 12 major terminal markets were 265,000 head this week, 15,000 less than last week and 37,000 less than the corresponding week a year ago.

U.S., Soviet Envoys Meet; Suez Compromise Is Talked

LONDON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and Russia's Dmitri Shepilov conferred almost 90 minutes today on the possibility of a compromise over the future of the Suez Canal. They parted smiling.

Dulles was accompanied to the Soviet embassy by Russian-speaking Charles E. Bohlen, U. S. ambassador in Moscow, who acted as interpreter.

A reporter asked Dulles: "Is there any sign of a compromise?"

Dulles threw back his head and laughed, but did not comment.

Then he drove off to the British Foreign Office and talked with French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Much of the hard bargaining of the 22-nation Suez conference is being done behind the scenes.

The issue as it stands after two days of sessions:

Police Patrol Portsmouth's Strike Area

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—Police have begun a "dark to dawn" patrol of struck Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. installations here in an effort to avert further violence.

Police Chief Hugh Rudity announced the move after a stoning of four company buildings here and in nearby New Boston and Sciotoville Thursday night by some 200 to 300 persons.

"The situation here has reached a serious stage," Rudity said.

The striking Communication Workers of America denied its members were responsible.

Meanwhile, in Cincinnati, negotiations between the union and the company bogged down. Federal Mediator Edward Phillips indicated he would try to get the two groups together again next week.

Phillips met with two union representatives Friday. Company officials said they would not attend further meetings while "acts of violence" persist.

About 600 company workers have been striking since July 15 in parts of 24 Ohio counties. The dispute over a new one-year contract centers around working conditions.

Next 30 Days To See Dip In Mercury

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chillier-than-usual temperatures over the next month have been predicted for the Great Lakes region, the northern plains and the far southwest, but thermometers are expected to rise above normal in the south east of the Rockies and along the New England and California coasts.

The Weather Bureau issued this 30-day forecast for the country:

"The 30-day outlook for the period from mid-August to mid-September calls for temperatures to average below seasonal normals in the Great Lakes region, northern plains and far southwest."

"Above normal temperatures are expected in the southern half of the nation east of the Rockies. In the northern plateau region and along the coasts of New England and California."

"In other areas, temperatures should average near normal."

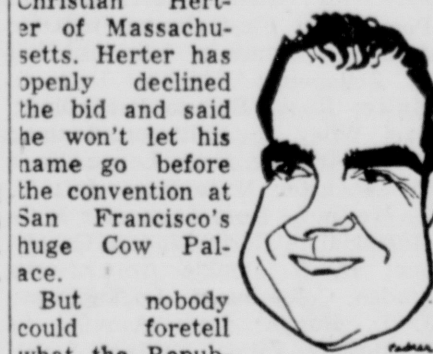

"Precipitation is expected to exceed normal in the central plains and Great Lakes region. Subnormal amounts are indicated in the Middle Atlantic states, the south and the far west with near normal elsewhere."

Richard Nixon

But nobody could foretell what the Republicans would do if they felt free, like the Democrats did yesterday, to choose anyone they felt like to run with Eisenhower, a President who has been seriously hit twice in nine months.

Eisenhower has said he likes Nixon, but the choice of his companion on the ticket is up to convention delegates.

Out at the Cow Palace, a lone man was silently, but with gestures and lip movements, practicing a speech.

This turned out to be genial Gov. Goodwin Knight of California who, satisfied that his welcoming address was OK, reported he still will accept any Eisenhower-headed ticket, whether shared by Nixon, a fellow Californian, or not. Knight had refused to endorse Nixon.

Stassen, in arriving here yesterday, was asked whether Kefauver's selection as the Democrats' No. 2 man strengthened his anti-Nixon drive. He said "I never committed on action of the Democrats."

The trouble with any move to replace Nixon was that nobody else appeared to be an obvious recruit. Names mentioned included Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland, the man who placed Eisenhower's name in nomination in 1952, and Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey.

So dim were the prospects of anyone but Nixon as Eisenhower's running mate that nobody apparently paid any attention to Humphrey, the Ohio industrialist, when he arrived on the same plane with Stassen.

Sen. Edward Thyne of Minnesota, Stassen's home state, said he could see no possibility of Stassen "getting anywhere" with his lone Nixon campaign. Thyne, however, said the Democrats had picked their strongest possible ticket in Stevenson

Family Type Farm's Rated Vital Bulwark

Farmers Union Head Says They Help Check Communism

Members of the Pickaway County Farmers Union, at a charter night meeting held at Five Points, heard a warning that the family-type farm must be retained as basis for the nation's agricultural life to help guard against the spread of communism.

The warning came from Joseph W. Fichter, chairman of the Ohio Farmers Union and top speaker at the gathering. The Farmers Union is a "national organization of farm families, . . . built and controlled by farm families, and operating to build greater security for families to live, to own and to serve on the land."

Fichter told the Pickaway County members in part:

"The Farmers Union stands four-square for the enactment of federal farm income protection legislation at 100 percent of fair parity for the family farm production of all farm commodities. Means of protection should include production payments in workable combinations with price supporting loans, purchase agreements, purchases and other methods."

"WE IN the Farmers Union believe that the family-type farm must be retained as the basis of our agriculture, for it is fundamental to our democratic society and one of our most effective protections against communism. We agree with a recent report of a Congressional Committee which states that the family farm constitutes the backbone of 'private enterprise' in agriculture."

"The family farmer cannot long survive in an economy in which he has to sell his products at the mercy of the 'open market' while purchasing the things he has to buy on a controlled market."

"The Farmers Union is convinced that basically the current farm problem is one of under-consumption, not over-production, and that we must find the wisdom to promote the ever-greater attainment and ever-wiser use of a growing abundance to meet the needs of the people in our nation and throughout the world. The reason we seem to have a surplus now is that the food needs of the people in our nation and in countries abroad are not being adequately met."

Selby Shoe Co. Control Is Sold

PORTSMOUTH, N.H.—Control of Selby Shoe Co., manufacturer of women's footwear, has been purchased by three Brooklyn and Chicago men, Roger Selby, chairman of the board and son of the founder, said today.

Selby identified the purchasers as Morris Chaitlen of Brooklyn, president of Rockwood & Co., chocolate manufacturers, and J. A. Pritzker of Chicago and his father, A. N. Pritzker. Selby said they bought 152,000 shares, slightly more than two-thirds of Selby's 226,500 outstanding shares for more than $3 million.

Ballou To Build Drive-In Movie North Of City

A new drive-in movie theater is to be built approximately two miles north of Circleville on Route 23, according to an announcement made today by William Ballou of 217 N. Pickaway St.

Ballou, who is heading the project, said the theater is scheduled to open next Spring. He said construction would begin immediately.

The theater will be called "North Star". It will have room for 400 to 500 cars and will be located on 10 acres of Ballou's own farm land on the west side of Route 23, between the Circleville Motel and Tink's Tavern.

There will be individual speakers for each car. A refreshment stand will be one of the top features of the new theater.

A "CINEMASCOPE" screen will be installed so that all the latest wide-angle movies can be shown, Ballou added.

This will not be Ballou's first venture into the drive-in movie theater business. He built one between Canton and Akron a while ago, but it is not in operation now.

Japanese Find Names Difficult

TOKYO (U.S.A.)—Sen. Estes Kefauver's nomination as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate today brought Japanese inquiries on how to pronounce his name.

Newspaper headline writers reduced it to phonetic characters read as "Kk-fuu-fuu" or "Kiptu-fuu." That is the closest Japanese comes to duplicating the English sound of Kefauver.

Kefauver's Democratic presidential running mate is known in Japan as "Su-te-vun-sohn."

Kefauver pronounces his name "Key-faw-ver."

Educator, 58, Dies
CLEVELAND (U.S.A.)—The Rev. Frederick E. Welfie, president of John Carroll University since 1946, died Friday following a heart attack. He was 58.

Company I Guardsmen Receive 'Excellent' Rating While At Camp

Company I, Circleville's National Guard unit of the 166th Infantry Regimental Combat Team, along with other companies of the third battalion, has received an over-all inspection rating of "excellent" for the first week of Summer training at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

Local guardsmen have been training there since Aug. 5. The unit is scheduled to return to Circleville Sunday.

The entire first week of training was closely checked by Second Army inspectors. The second and final week of training will be conducted in bivouac, when all Guard soldiers will eat and sleep in the field.

While in the bivouac area, the local infantrymen will undergo all phases of tactical exercises, including problems at the squad, platoon and company level. These exercises will also be checked by Second Army personnel.

REPORTS RECEIVED here indicate that the Circleville men are doing an excellent job in their training, especially in weapons firing. Crew-served weapons fired so far by the Company I men have included: 57, 75 and 105 millimeter recoilless rifles; 60 and 81 millimeter mortars; 3.5 rocket launchers; and light and heavy 30 caliber machine guns.

First Lt. Robert Shaw of 224½ N. Scioto St. received a superior rating from the Army inspectors for conducting a "squad field firing exercise." The field problem included all squad offensive-type tactics and was conducted with live ammunition.

Search Continuing For Queens Of Pumpkin Shows Since 1933

A search is still on for the Miss Pumpkin Show queens who have reigned since 1933, when the beauty event was first held.

Robert Colville, treasurer of the Pumpkin Show board, is trying to locate the queens so that they can be invited to attend the golden anniversary of the show, Oct. 17-20.

The first queen, Miss Lucille Heise in 1933, is now a resident of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. She has already notified Colville that she will be here. She told Colville she is postponing her usual Summer vacation in order to attend.

Colville has explained that he anticipates no difficulty in locating some of the queens who live in or near Circleville. He is anxious, however, to obtain the addresses of those who have moved from the district.

REGARDLESS of their residence, he pointed out, it would facilitate planning for the event if all the queens check with him by phone or mail to say whether they will be able to participate.

"Mr. Pumpkin Show" can always be located by calling his office—that of county treasurer.

All available records list the Pumpkin Show queens as follows:

1933—Miss Lucille Heise.

1934—Miss Eleanor Anderson

Lt. Shaw also placed third in the M-1 rifle firing matches. By gaining third place in this competition, Shaw is eligible to attend the national small arms school for expert riflemen and expert rifle instructors to be held at Camp Perry in the near future.

A second local Guardsman was flown home by an ONG airplane in answer to an emergency call, according to word received here.

Sgt. William M. Andrews of 215½ E. Main St. received word on Aug. 12 that his wife had taken ill here. A short time later, Sgt. Andrews was in the air headed for Circleville.

A few days earlier M-Sgt. Robert Wilkinson of 358 Cedar Heights Rd. had received a message that he was about to become a father. He also was flown home by an Ohio National Guard plane.

ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF General Maxwell D. Taylor is scheduled to inspect the 166th Regiment during a tour of Camp Breckinridge this week. General Taylor won fame not only in World War II as an airborne unit commander but also later in Korea as commander of the U. S. Eighth Army.

Highlight of last week's training was a unit review held for Governor Frank Lausche and Major General Leo M. Kreber, commanding general of the Ohio 37th infantry division. General Kreber has since announced his retirement.

For off-duty recreation, the ONG men are taking advantage of swimming, golfing and fishing facilities in and around the Kentucky military base.

Law Signed To Aid Children Of Dead Vets

Provides Assistance For Education Of Eligible Children

The President has signed a new law which will make children of deceased veterans eligible for government financial assistance to further their education, veterans service officer James Shea announced today.

Purpose of the newly signed law is to insure that children of deceased veterans will have equal educational opportunities they would have if the parent were still living. The new assistance program applies to children of veterans whose death was caused by disease or injury incurred in the armed forces during world wars one and two and the Korean conflict.

"Assistance is available to eligible persons after their 18th birthday, or their successful completion of high school, whichever comes first," the service officer noted. "The assistance ends on their 23rd birthday," he added.

The age limit will be extended if eligible persons are over 18 but under 23 on the effective date of this act. The law became effective June 29 this year.

"If individual age deadlines fall during the middle of a school term, persons in this case would be permitted to complete the term," Shea declared.

STUDENTS taking part in the assistance program will be entitled to 36 months of education and they will receive $110 monthly for the successful completion of each month's schooling.

Students attending school on a three-quarter time basis will receive $80 a month. Those attending on a one-half time basis will be allowed $50 per month.

The law states that educational courses may be taken in colleges and universities as well as schools below the college level. Regular high school training is not included in the act.

Courses below the college level must train students for definite vocational objectives. On the job training, on the farm training and correspondence courses are not allowed under the new law.

Service officer Shea stated that eligible persons may apply for this benefit at the local veterans service office located in the basement of the Pickaway County Courthouse.

Hollywood's Cold Shoulder Fails To Cool June Lockhart

HOLLYWOOD (U.S.A.)—What does a beautiful and talented young actress do when Hollywood tells her she's "not the type"?

June Lockhart went to New York and became a star in top television dramas and a panelist on the quiz shows "Down You Go" and "Who Said That?"

Now she's back on the sound stages doing a film which, though it's for TV, could mean a rebirth of her Hollywood career. She's co-starring with Dennis O'Keefe in one of CBS' "Playhouse 90" hour-and-a-half plays starting on the air in October.

The surroundings are familiar for June, who inherited her acting ability from her parents, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart. She made her movie debut at 12—after dancing at the Metropolitan Opera at 8. Her pictures as a teen-ager included "All This and Heaven Too," "Sergeant York" and "Meet Me in St. Louis."

But then, she recalled, producers and casting directors "Said I wasn't the Hollywood type. They said I should get married, stay home and cook. I guess they meant I wasn't flamboyant, wasn't the Marilyn Monroe or Lana Turner type."

The studio to which she was under contract, Eagle-Lion, folded. "Not trying to prove anything," she says, she went to New York—and got rave reviews in the play "For Love or Money." It ran a full season on Broadway. Television opened its doors, and June's life became hectic.

An elevator was held on one occasion so she could whisk from "Robert Montgomery Presents" to "Who Said That?" a quizzer based on memorable quotations. For the three years it was on the air, June studied harder for it than for her dramatic roles, reading eight newspapers a day and two news magazines a week.

June married Dr. John Maloney, a Manhattan physician, and had two children. In between TV shows they even squeezed in a trip to Europe. "The more you do, your capacity increases."

gates not to worry about his forecast of Stevenson's defeat. "Don't let that worry you," he said. "That's what people were saying about me in 1948."

KEFAUVER of the big smile and the big hand in presidential primaries had his moments in the spotlight, too.

Noting that he had won his own nomination in "a free and open convention," Kefauver said:

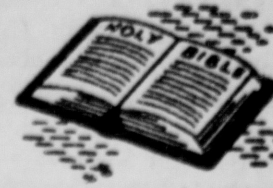

"I hope that it will set a precedent for the future. It will be very interesting to see whether the process is followed in San Francisco next week."

The Republicans open their convention there Monday.

Stevenson himself paid some attention to this situation in a rousing receiving acceptance speech. He said Kefauver's victory in convention balloting had "dignified" the office of the vice presidency.

BRING A FRIEND TO CHURCH WITH YOU

Special Program Planned Sunday At Calvary Church

The worship service for Sunday at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church will observe the "Summer Christmas Tree" program which is for the purpose of helping children around the world realize more fully the love of God and the understanding of neighbors far and near.

Because it is so difficult to send packages and gifts directly to the children in these many places, our offering is sent to the mission fields where it is used specifically for children's work. The offering objectives for this year are to be for the children's work in Indonesia, an Orphanage in Brazil, Osaka Suigo Rimpoken Orphanage in Japan and the Hip Woh School in Hong Kong.

The program is directed in each local church through the secretary for missionary education for children of the Women's Society of World Service. This secretary in Calvary Church is Mrs. Dale Rough.

"Christmas" hymns will be sung, in keeping with the program. These hymns include: "O Come All Ye Faithful", "Away in a Manger" and "Christ for the World We Sing".

The junior choir will sing an anthem entitled "Little Children Far Away". They will be accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Earl Mil-lions.

Other features of the program will be as follows:

Carol Wise will lead the congregation in the call to worship.

The "Christmas Story", taken from Luke 2:7-20, will be read by the junior department as a choral reading.

Four of the junior children will represent visitors from the four places that have been chosen for our offering objectives. They will present a brief report of the needs there.

These visitors are: June Amann, representing Hong Kong; Brenda Isles, representing Brazil; Teddy Stewart, representing Japan; and Helen Brown, representing Indonesia.

Sunday school classes for both the children's department and adults will meet at 10.

Church Building In U.S. Still On Booming Uptrend

The church building boom in the United States, which has boosted church construction to 10 times the level of a decade ago, shows no signs of leveling off, American Iron and Steel Institute reported.

Within the next 10 years, an estimated 70,000 new churches will be built, at a cost of $7 billion.

Expenditures for religious construction during 1955 were a record of $760 million, 25 per cent more than the previous year. In 1956, they are expected to reach $900 million.

The expanded church building program was attributed to the rapid growth of decentralized suburban communities, the general rise in population and the resurgence of religious interest. In 1954 alone, these factors contributed to the creation of 5000 new congregations.

This demand for new churches will require thousands of tons of materials, such as stone, wood, brick and metals, including iron and steel. Among the most versatile and economical of available materials, iron and steel products are used extensively in modern church construction, the Institute noted. Church structures utilize the strength and durability of steel in columns, beams, reinforced concrete, floor joists, main supports and other ways.

For example, a church under construction in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, has a 279-ton steel framework identical in structure to the bolted steel framework of many modern skyscrapers.

Bible Words To Live By

MATTHEW 22:37-38 "And he said to him, 'You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind. This is the great and first commandment.' (RSV)

Jesus used the words of the Shema to point to the greatest commandment of all. In doing so, he brings to mind the fact that our relationship to God should be the first and primary concern of men. He also brings to mind that our commitment to God is not a partial commitment. Commitment to God must be total commitment of total self. It involves the commitment of the emotions; with all your heart; it involves commitment of spiritual life; with all your soul; it involves commitment of rational faculties; with all your mind. We might add one of our own, the commitment of physical being "with all your strength." God must come first and our com-

HOW RESOURCEFUL ARE YOU?

Puppies are generally more resourceful than people! They never take fences seriously. They find a way to get over or under the obstacle.

People take fences seriously. They usually have more respect for their limitations than for their abilities. That's why so many of us live in a narrow, discouraging world without promise or hope.

And even as we speak thrilling words like freedom and opportunity and ideals, some of us wonder secretly just what these are and how they may be attained.

There are spiritual resources in life which can enable any man to achieve ideals. They are the simple, commonplace commodities of religion—things like prayer and faith—but they are the keys to all attainment.

God gave us these resources to use. And He gave us churches to teach us how to use them. Forget your fences—discover your resources in Church next Sunday.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

NEVER TOO OLD

MORE AMERICAN adults than youngsters may be going to school this Fall. Enrollment in the nation's adult education classes is expected to reach 35 or 40 million. This compares with about 32 million students expected by the U. S. Department of Education to attend elementary or secondary public schools.

According to Dr. Paul Essart of the Adult Education Association, public affairs and parent education classes have had the most significant increase and have proved most popular.

This development of adult education classes has been called the "fourth level in the educational system." The other levels are the grade school, high school and college.

Many parents will be going to evening classes in the same schools their children attend in the day, others will be going to divisions of local colleges or universities, to voluntary and religious organizations, workshops and community projects.

There are many and diverse reasons for adults wishing to increase their knowledge of a subject. Some adults are drawn by the lure of a diploma or a degree. Others are interested in receiving training that will advance them in their daily work. Another motive is that many parents want to "keep up" with their children. Many parents who were unable to attend college themselves have worked hard to give their children that opportunity, so they are endeavoring to "improve themselves" through adult education.

Despite lack of funds and shortage of teachers, adult education is rapidly becoming an accepted and desirable facet of community life.

REDUCING USELESS TASKS

MIDWESTERN reservists training now at Camp McCoy, Wis., are leading a life and no guard duty. In fact, they aren't that would astonish old soldiers — no KP even taking physical training or long marches to firing ranges.

But most satisfying to the civilian soldiers must be the thought that 3,000 regular Army men and civilians are doing the dish-washing and pot-scrubbing duties and guarding the motor pools and ammunition dumps.

Is the Army getting soft? the commanding officer of one of the regiments now attending the camp, Col. Joseph H. Crawford of Kansas City, Mo., explains it this way: "We have just two weeks in camp each year. The important thing is training, and a man on KP and guard or any other detail is losing a chance to learn something important."

How true! Many a private who underwent training in World War II would agree heartily.

But what is amazing is that higher officers didn't see it. The German army did. It used limited service troops or civilians to do the chores so its troops could spend full time training.

Perhaps the peacetime Army clung to many of these practices simply because there isn't enough else to do. But this wise practice for reservists with limited training time might well be put into use by the Army if there is a new crisis requiring speeded-up training of troops.

NOT POCKETBOOK-DEEP

THIS COUNTRY may be experiencing a religious revival of sorts, but it apparently doesn't extend to the pocketbook level. In fact, the percentage of giving in relation to total personal income after taxes is slightly lower than it was in 1930, when the great depression was just starting.

According to government reports Americans in 1930 gave $875 million to their churches and other religious organizations, or about 1.17 per cent of their income after taxes.

In 1954, the most recent year for which complete reports are available, the American public gave $2.85 billion to religious organizations. But because of the enormous increase in income, that figure represents only 1.11 of total income after taxes.

That, by the way, is far below the so-called "Biblical tithe" which most denominations in principle list as the yardstick of giving. It is of interest, however that

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

While the master minds at any convention are busy making their deals, the delegates are usually amused by a torrent of oratory. The orators are selected either because they are currently important or because they are prospectively significant. The greatest of such orators for all time was William Jennings Bryan who carved out a career for himself by his gift for speech.

Bryan had no microphone to help him and was fortunate in the possession of a glorious, soul-touching voice, the lower register of which was as moving as Edouard de Reszke's of those years. The microphone seems to have ruined oratorical voices because the speakers no longer possess great lung power but have learned rather to contort themselves within the narrow radius of the microphone, which, if it should unfortunately go dead for a moment, leaves upon the ear the inarticulate sounds of a pip-squeak.

William Jennings Bryan not only possessed a voice but he knew his native tongue, English, a rare advantage in any days. He was of the tradition of Daniel Webster and Henry Ward Beecher, men who spoke their language with precision and beauty. His "Cross of Gold" speech in the 1896 Democratic Convention unexpectedly won his nomination for the Presidency.

Bryan was a populist and what he said he meant and this is demonstrable by his consistency until he died after serving the Woodrow Wilson Administration. His span was long and his profession was oratory.

Bryan naturally came to mind as one listened to the keynote speech by Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee if only as a contrast. Bryan was eloquent; Clement was forensic. The difference is not only in the spirit of man but in the grasp of content. Clement harangued.

It was what could be called a fighting speech, but whom was Clement fighting? Certainly his "Nixon, Dixon and Yates" did not reflect unfavorably upon anyone but raised the ghost of "Martin, Barton and Fish," the Rooseveltian trio that was intended to amuse not to castigate.

Nor did it become a Democratic key-note to refer to President Eisenhower's illness, considering that Franklin D. Roosevelt was a very sick man but four times a candidate and elected and the fourth time obviously on the verge of death. And among the Democrats, Lyndon Johnson is a cardiac case and Stuart Symington has high blood pressure; and among the Republicans, Christian Herter suffers from arthritis.

When men pass 50, they get things and it really makes little difference. Harriman came out of an operation to run for the Presidency—an operation which a quarter of a century ago frightened the families of those who had to undergo it but today is routine.

So, it would seem that Clement stooped too low to make an unnecessary point which, were he not so young, he would not have thought proper. In fact, only he and Nixon seem to be whole, but who knows for how long? The sort of ad hominem oratory that Frank Clement practised is usually relished at the moment as one belly-laughs at seeing a fat man slip on a banana peel. If the Democrats criticize Nixon for his rough-and-tumble speech-making in 1954, Clement has outdone Nixon.

None of this is really necessary, particularly at a time when the President had to call leading Democrats away from their convention to lay before them the national peril in the Suez situation. Anyone can poke fun at John Foster Dulles who lays himself open all the time, probably because, doing his job, he does not care.

Nevertheless, a thoughtful man would try to remember that Dulles inherited a whole series of problems that have been in the making since World War I and are now coming to a head historically. A thoughtful man would not imperil Dulles' usefulness at a moment when he must negotiate with a greater number of antagonistic or diffident powers.

Frank Clement may have relished the cheers of his audience, but did he ask what kind of an audience Dulles will face in London on the 16th of this month when he needs to try to keep the United States out of war without damaging our entire defensive structure? Clement probably never gave it a thought. He was just delivering a "campaign speech," which no one is supposed to take seriously, not even he who delivers it.

more than half of the money Americans give to all the "worthy causes" goes to some religious organization. That figure has remained fairly constant over the years and in 1954 was 53 per cent.

Scientists say eventually man will be eating seaweed, but whether as a substitute or antidote for spinach is not clear.

CHAPTER 24

SO FAR as anyone could see, for the next thirty hours Chad did nothing about the lawsuit, nothing to counteract the effect of the newspaper account of the case and the accompanying photograph.

To all outward appearances, Miss Barr also followed her usual pattern. At six of the second evening, however, she was still in her office. Chad, coming in, he said for a pencil, lifted an eyebrow.

"I got a little behind in my paper work," she explained. Her make-up was fresh, she was out of uniform. Chad squinted at her and went on into his office.

In a few minutes he came out again. Miss Barr was bent over the desk, the light from the copper-hooded lamp licking her hair into little flames. "Better knock off," said Chad gruffly.

"Well—" "Theoretically, only the call desk is open here at night."

"You often come back, don't you?" Her gaze was challenging.

"How do you know?" She smiled. "A woman reads big things out of little signs," she said throatily.

Chad threw himself down into one of the steel-framed chairs. "A woman often reads big things out of no signs, too," he said pleasantly.

"I know," she agreed. "But I wasn't very good at it today."

"Oh, yes," he remembered, "you were going to snoop and pry."

"Everyone talked a lot," she admitted. "But no one said anything. Except of course to worry about you, and how this affair will hurt you."

"Kind of them to be concerned . . ." he murmured.

"But," she said, looking shocked, "it will be exceedingly bad luck, Doctor, if this charge against you would stop your work!"

"If there are grounds for that lawsuit," Chad argued, lazily, "my career should be ruined."

"I've seen this sort of thing before," said Hazel significantly. "Your case is different, of course. This matter is connected with your work. The other I have in mind was a strictly personal thing—and it killed that doctor!"

"My goodness, Barr!" His eyes were red-brown marbles.

"It did," she insisted. "It was an awful thing. I was that doctor's secretary . . . too."

"Upon my soul!" said Chad.

Mays. He closed his eyes for a moment. Anxious to pump this woman, but wary of her—needing to be wary, he thought. "Why do you say too?" he asked, his voice troubled. "How does that man's bad luck apply to me?"

"There's one more similarity," said Hazel archly. "Of course, it may be only gossip, but there is quite a lot of talk around to the effect that you and that same doctor's wife—his widow, it is, of course—are close friends. Very close. It has occurred to me, of course," she went on, "that if you have talked to Mrs. Van Horn about the clinic."

Chad smiled, as if with great amusement. "I'm a great talker," he agreed. "But I'd certainly not consider giving her a report—of any kind."

"What—this is supposing, of course, Dr. Mays—but what if she came here to the clinic? Might not one of the clerks give her a certain report? From Miss Duckett down, all of us know her mother has given a lot of money to the clinic, and—"

"I think you're on the wrong track entirely," said Chad.

"I told you that I worked for Dr. Van Horn. And it is my opinion that she'd do much more than steal a report and use it."

"Oh, nonsense!"

"She did a great deal to hurt her husband."

He waited. Interested, but not appearing to be eager.

Hazel sat thoughtfully for a minute. "I—" She sighed heavily. "I don't like even to think about that awful time," she said sadly.

"I admired Dr. Van Horn very much. Not only as a brilliant doctor—which he was! But as the friend he was to me, and other people. Women were wild about him—he used to make jokes about the one who would catch him sometime when he was tired . . ."

Chad's shoe sole softly stirred the carpet pile into ridges.

Miss Barr was still talking. "The marriage happened quite suddenly—unexpectedly—even to me who knew so much about the doctor's affairs. But as soon as they got back from their honeymoon, I realized that something was wrong. I supposed it was a matter of Lacey's youth, and her being spoiled. He had a heart condition, too, which needed careful handling, and Lacey knew about that, I'm sure. But—to make a long story short—things did not go well. Britton told me that he was afraid a divorce was inevitable. The child Lacey was about to have was not his."

She glanced at Chad, who was actually smiling.

Miss Barr gulped, her cheeks flushing.

"He wanted children, but not that sort. So he began the processes leading to a divorce. And—the emotional strain—perhaps—killed him."

Chad said nothing.

"One night he went out on a late call—as he had no business doing, I suppose. When he returned home, there was some sort of scene—in the garage—and he died. She—his wife—claimed not to have seen him. She said she had been in bed. When questioned, she went hysterical, and, of course, money brings a lot of protection at a time like that. But it was a terrible thing! He was such a brilliant man!"

"Did the law do anything to her?" asked Chad, softly. "Put her in jail? Give her the chair?"

Hazel Barr looked at him, shocked, puzzled. And then angry. "Why, Dr. Mays!" she cried.

"Aren't you saying that she committed murder?"

"Oh, not actually! Though if she had used a gun—but don't forget how rich her mother was. Is. Too rich, of course, to let a charge of any kind be made against Lacey. No indeed! They hushed things up, completely. Even today, no one speaks of it."

"I imagine they embalmed and buried the handsome Dr. Van Horn," Chad's voice twanged.

"Dr. Mays, don't you believe what I've told you?"

"I don't believe you," he said finally and flatly, his eyes narrowed, his face hard. "I think you have taken a fly-speck and built up a stinking, steaming pile of manure. I don't know your purpose. I hope you don't have any. But I don't believe one word of it. Miss Barr! Not one word of it."

She leaned back in her desk chair, back out of the fan of light from the cone-shaded lamp. Her face was a pale oval in which her eyes glowed green. "Well," she said at last, "I do suggest that you ask John Blandin about the matter. He and Dr. Van Horn were partners, you know. Perhaps you'd feel that you could trust him to tell you the truth."

McClure-Gifford Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Methodist Church Scene Of Rites

Miss Betty Jean McClure and Mr. Charles Dale Gifford exchanged wedding vows in First Methodist Church. The Rev. Charles Reed performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladioli and two seven-tiered candelabra surrounded by huckleberry foliage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McClure of 556 Springhollow Rd. and Mr. Gifford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gifford of Circleville Route 1. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of rose patterned, hand-clipped Chantilly lace with a skirt of tulle over satin ending in a chapel train. The elongated fitted bodice featured a high neck with a lace collar and her long sleeves formed bridal points over her hands. The bouffant skirt of tulle, accented with lace appliques, billowed over an old fashioned hoop. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was caught to a Queen's crown of lace, seeded pearls and sequins and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and Stephanotis and streamers with shattered carnations. Miss Pat Nau was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were: Miss Mary Ann McClure, sister of the bride, Mrs. Charles Roberts, cousin of the bride and Miss Sondra Brecaunt. Miss Nau wore a ballerina-length gown of aqua crystallette and the attendants were attired in peacock ballerina-length gowns of crystallette. The fitted elongated bodices had banded scoop necks and back panels from the necks to the hems. Large bows in the back topped the full skirts, worn over hoops. Each wore a crystallette head band in shades to match their gowns, and fashioned with seeded pearls. The maid of honor carried a spray of dark, pink carnations and the bridesmaids' sprays were of light pink carnations. Mr. Vernon Gifford served as best man for his brother and the ushers included: Mr. John Gifford and Mr. Orville Gifford, both brothers of the groom and Mr. Robert Rittinger. The candelabras were lighted preceding the ceremony by Mr. Robert McClure, brother of the bride, and Mr. Thurman Smith. Mrs. Irvin Leist offered selections at the organ and Miss Janet Martin of Springfield sang "Oh Promise Me," "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." Approximately 200 guests from Chillicothe, Grove City, New Burlington, Hillsboro, Lakewood, Wellston, New Holland, Mendon, Versailles, Columbus, Celina, Springfield, Columbus and Circleville attended the reception held in the social rooms of the church. Hostesses were: Miss Sue Smith, Miss Lorraine Gifford, Miss Ann Scott, Miss Ann Tisor and Miss Mary Margaret Shoemaker. The bridal table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. At each end of the long table, covered with a lace tablecloth, were arrangements of fringed chrysanthemums with a single white candle in the center surrounded with huckleberry foliage. The punch bowl was surrounded by pink rose buds. For the wedding the bride's mother wore a powder blue silk chiffon dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and the bridegroom's mother chose a powder blue nylon dress with pink accessories and a corsage of white carnations. For the couple's honeymoon trip to Massachusetts, the bride wore a aqua, linen sheath dress with white accessories and the orchid from the bridal bouquet. The new Mrs. Gifford is a graduate of Circleville High School and is now a senior at Miami Valley Hospital School of Nursing. Mr. Gifford was graduated from Pickaway Township High School. He attended Ohio State University, Columbus, and served two years with the armed forces. He is now enrolled at Ohio University, Athens.

AN ECHO OF THE ORIENT in this casual resort or town costume from B. H. Wragge. The two-tone pink printed pure silk shantung sheath is slashed on both sides to a low hip point. Beneath is a white nubbed silk skirt. The miniature parasol print underscores the Eastern flavor.

This is the enzyme age. Modern chemistry plus modern bacteriology combine to give you the ultimate in a product to maintain your cesspools and septic tanks. Actually helps the bacteria to help themselves.

Here's How?
Bacteriologically: Our enzymes promote, activate & feed the bacteria which split fats, starches, protein and cellulose. This results in better operation and less frequent cleaning.

Chemically:
Camp Cesspool & Septic Tank Conditioner works on a new but proven principle. It corrects the chemical structure of the material in the septic tank or cesspool allowing better bacterial action.

Together:

4-H Food Projects Judged In Fairgrounds Coliseum

There were 90 entries, of a possible 131, for the second pre-fair judging and placing of county 4-H food projects and demonstrations. To be eligible for entry, members were to have averaged an A in total project activity. For this second big judgment day at the Pickaway County fairgrounds coliseum, arranged and supervised by Mrs. Leora Sayre, home economics agent, the judges were Miss Mabel Westervelt and Mrs. Emily Marks, home economics agents of Fairfield and Ross Counties. The top ten in each classification were placed as follows. Salads, Sandwiches and Summer Drinks, or a luncheon arrangement, was the first class with 1st place going to Mary Pennington, Joyce McPherson, 2nd; Medrith Hix, 3rd; Nancy Stevenson, 4th; Betty McPherson, 5th; Marilyn Dudson, 6th; Peggy Wardell, 7th; Judy Ekers, 8th; Carol Sue Grable and Mildred Barry, 9th and 10th. For the group competing and co-operating in the cakes and cookies project, Gloria Hamrick placed 1st; Nancy Wilson and Beverly McKenzie, 2nd and 3rd; Betty Fraser, 4th; Kay Bush, 5th; Marilyn Shell, 6th; Peggy Clark, 7th; Linda Baum, 8th; Janet Grissom, 9th; and Jane Smith, 10th. The exhibit of Breads revealed that baking not in the definitely sweet category was popular and of good quality. Placements in "Baking Is Fun" were: Sally Willis, Jeannie Walker, Judy Fee, Helen Allen, and Barbara Diffendahl, 1st through 5th, in the order listed. For "Yeast Bread, Rolls, and Pies", Betty Lou Leist received highest rating, Sylvia Smith and Jeannie Edgington, 2nd and 3rd; Judy Fee, 4th; Sally Montgomery and Anna Mae Styers, 5th and 6th; Ethel Gilmore, 7th; Karen Ayers, 8th; Virginia Beavers and Scatia Kay Skinner, 9th and 10th. For the advanced projects involving Complete Meals few members carried the projects. Special recognition went to Patty Steele and Barbara Stoer for their edible and poster exhibits in "A 4-H Member Prepares Meals". The "Let's Cook" project was very satisfactorily completed and exhibited by Jeannie Walker. Stephen Hatfield completed but did not exhibit for county. In the Food Preservation placements were in two categories. In the Freezing project Velma Alice Kuhn received 1st place; Janet Acord, 2nd; Jane Little and Yvonne Beavers, 3rd and 4th. For Canning 1st place went to Beverly McKenzie; Carolyn Newton and Carol Baum, 2nd and 3rd; and Virginia Barnes, 4th. An interesting highlight for the day was a Flower Arrangement from the garden of Handy Hatfield who carried a Flower Garden project. In the Demonstration Revue, which concluded this session of home economics recognition and placing, Carol Baum and Carolyn Newton were rated 1st for their team demonstration on "Canning Tomatoes". A close 2nd was given Alice Baum and Velma Alice Kuhn for a zipper demonstration "It's a Breeze". For individual demonstrations, Velma Alice Kuhn rated 1st for her demonstration on "Fresh Peaches in January," 2nd place went to Judith Dennin for "Little Acts Prevent Big Disasters," and 3rd, "Stay Stitching in Time" by Carolyn Newton. There are a limited number, of pre-registered realted entries for each county for state fair at which more than 3,000 Ohio 4-H boys and girls will participate. In keeping with this and by virtue of their county exhibit ratings, the following members will go to state fair for exhibit-interviews: Gloria Hamrick, Nancy Wilson, Betty Lou Leist and Sally Willis. For Demonstrations: Judy Dennis, Carolyn Newton and Velma Alice Kuhn.

Ohio High School Football Stars Battle To 19-19 Tie

CANTON, Ohio — The kids who will be cavorting the collegiate gridirons in a couple of years put on quite a show Friday night as Ohio's scholastic stars battled to a 19-19 deadlock in the 11th annual High School North-South game.

A crowd of some 14,000 watched the Rebels take a touchdown lead three times, only to have the Yankees match each score. The North-erners tied it at 19-19 with only 2:10 minutes to go, and then missed the conversion try which would have given them their sixth win against four losses and a tie in the colorful series.

Although 14 of the 50 youngsters on the All-Star squads — seven from each team — will enroll at Ohio State this fall, most of the game's standouts have chosen other schools.

George Izo, Barberton's all-star quarterback who completed 7 of 13 passes for 127 yards, one for a touchdown, is headed for Notre Dame. He also scored a touchdown for the North and gained 23 yards on nine "sneaks."

Ron Burton, Springfield's scintillating halfback, zoomed 120 yards in 16 tries for the South to lead the ground-gainers. He's going to Northwestern. Ted Acreman of Lancaster, who picked up 103 yards for the South in 20 tries will enroll at Indiana. Paul McGuire of Youngstown Ursuline, who scored one of the North's scores on a 23-yard pass from Izo, is going to Dayton, and Willie Mack of Mansfield, who scored the other Yankee marker and led his team on the ground with 36 yards in eight attempts, has chosen Bowling Green.

Ron Vitatoe of Hamilton, who scored a touchdown on a sneak play and passed to Columbus East's Al Long for a 16-yard score, is going to Ohio State, as is Long. The teams were the most evenly matched in the 11-year history of the classic sponsored by the Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn. Each team scored once after an intercepted pass, each counted after a recovered fumble, and each went 69 yards for its third marker.

Each team scored a touchdown in the first, second and fourth periods, the South counting first in each stanza, and the North countering immediately. The Rebels, coached by Ralph Webster of Columbus East, tried to crack the line for the first conversion but fell short. The North booted its first, and led 7-6 at the end of the first period, 13-12 at the half, and then missed a chance to win after the South had taken a 19-13 edge in the final quarter. With only about two minutes to play, the North scored in three plays from 39 yards out after Clarence Bruton of Youngstown East had recovered a fumble. But a conversion try by Bob Young of Van Wert was inches wide and the Yankees had to settle for a tie.

The South had a 249 to 132-yard edge on running plays, but the Yankees had a 127 to 38 advantage through the air. Izo put on a great show, twice hitting receivers with long passes while in the grasp of charging defenders. The Rebels had an 18-13 advantage in first downs.

The game will be held at Canton the next three years.

North 7 6 0 6-19

South 6 6 0 7-19

North scoring—touchdowns: McGuire (23, pass from Izo), Izo (1, sneak); Mack (1, end run); Conversion: Young.

South scoring—Touchdowns: Vitatoe (1, sneak); Long (16, pass from Vitatoe); Acreman (2, plunge). Conversions: Gaiters.

Willie Mays Eyes Home Run Mark

NEW YORK — Willie Mays is in sight of Dale Long's home run record with five in as many successive games but Pittsburgh manager Bobby Bragan has no intention of walking Willie to protect his first baseman's mark.

Earlier in the season Long hit eight in eight games and Mays will be shooting for that mark in the next three games against the Pirates. The Giants centerfielder hit a homer in his fifth straight game as New York defeated Pittsburgh 5-3 last night.

"We'll pitch to Willie," said Bragan. "We're not going to walk him just to protect Long's record."

Miami To Honor Concert Pianist

OXFORD — Miami University will confer honorary degrees on an alumnus and a pianist at its summer commencement, Aug. 31.

They are Dr. David M. Delo, 1926 Miami graduate who is president of Wanger College, Staten Island, N. Y., and Robert Goldsand, concert pianist who has operated a piano workshop on Miami's summer program several years.

Uruguayan Entry Leading Tourney

ST. LOUIS — Fay Crocker, 36-year-old Uruguayan, is making a strong bid for victory with two rounds of sub-par golf in the $5,000 Norwood Hills Women's Invitational tourney.

Miss Crocker carded a 69-72-141 at the halfway mark in the 72-hole tourney, which carries a top prize of $900.

Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., moved up to second spot with a 36-hole total of 144, three strokes off the pace.

Another stroke back is Louise Suggs, the defending champion from Sea Island, Ga., with a 145.

4-Foot Mother Has 6-Pound Baby

CLEVELAND — A tiny mother gave birth yesterday to a boy weighing 6 pounds 4 ounces.

Mrs. Margaret Stankiewicz, 31, is only 48 inches tall.

The father, Henry J. Stankiewicz, 29, also is 4 feet tall. He is a clerk at a steel company.

Hospital attendants said mother and baby, named Henry Jr., Jr., were doing "nicely."

Columbus Cop Dies, Victim Of Gunfight

COLUMBUS — Police said Benjamin O. Franklin, 26, fatally wounded a 31-year-old Columbus policeman and wounded a second patrolman, then shot himself to death as other officers closed in on him yesterday.

Patrolman Thomas E. Webb, a veteran of six years on the force, died in a hospital about three hours after the gun battle on the city's east side. A bullet was lodged in his brain. He is the first Columbus police officer to be killed in a gun battle since 1938.

Webb's rookie partner, Patrolman Melvin M. Grimm, 25, was reported in fair condition.

Webb and Grimm had gone to an apartment house in answer to a call from Franklin's sister-in-law. She said Franklin had threatened to kill his wife.

In a struggle, Franklin wrestled away Grimm's revolver and shot Grimm. The latter staggered outside and got two deliveries to call for help on a police car radio.

Franklin shot Webb, then went to the apartment where his wife had barricaded the bedroom door. The wife, Bessie, 21, dropped her two small children from the second-story window. Then she and two other women relatives also jumped out the window.

Some 50 officers arrived and began firing tear gas into another bedroom where Franklin was trapped. They heard a shot and found Franklin slumped dead on the floor, a bullet wound in his temple.

Bank Teller Scared, But Sounds Alarm

CLEVELAND — "Of course I was scared," said Fred E. Vopal, 55, bank teller at a branch of the Society for Savings, "but there seemed nothing else to do."

What he did was to walk calmly to a back room and set off a burglar alarm, when a man handed him a note reading "hand over all your money." The would-be robber fled with the note, past about 50 customers.

One Of Andrew's Raiders Great-Uncle Of Circleville Woman

Marion Ross Executed With Seven Others

Raid During Civil War In Southern Georgia Nearly Successful

(Little mention has been made about the men who were executed for their part in the daring Andrews Raid during the Civil War. One of the eight men hanged was Marion Ross, great-uncle of Mrs. Roscoe Warren of 213 Linden Lane, who was later awarded the Medal of Honor. Mrs. Warren's father Marion E. Ruffner, was named for Ross.)

In late April of 1862, a group of 21 Union Army volunteers—led by a secret agent, James J. Andrews—disguised themselves as civilians and made their way deep into the South. Their purpose was to steal a train, bridge back north and burn overland bridges to put the rail line out of commission and virtually split the South in two.

A previous attempt at accomplishing this feat was unsuccessful even before it got well underway. But at Big Shanty, Ga., this second attempt netted the raiders a train and they proceeded north.

However, due to the persistent pursuit by the stolen train's conductor, William A. Fuller, plus some unforeseen circumstances, the raiders' engine, the "General", came to a halt near Ringgold, Ga., 90 miles from Big Shanty. All of the men scattered.

Within a few days, all the raiders, including Andrews, were caught. Six were later paroled, eight escaped from jail in Atlanta, Ga., where Andrews and seven others were executed.

MARION ROSS was one of those executed. Ross was sergeant major of the 2nd Ohio Infantry Regiment and the ranking non-commissioned officer on the raid.

After being captured, most of the raiders were finally assembled at the old Swims Jail in Chattanooga, Tenn. Here, they were put in a "cell" beneath the floor, floor, which 22 prisoners were forced to share. The room was 13 feet square and about the same in height.

It was here that Andrews, Ross and another raider joined the group. Ross helped ease the confinement by having the men sing.

One day, some of the raiders were taken to Knoxville, Tenn. for trial. These included Andrews, Ross and William Pittinger, who authored the book upon which the movie, "The Great Locomotive Chase", is based.

While at Knoxville, Andrews and another raider escaped. It was now the early part of June, nearly a month and a half after the raid. But both men were recaptured. Later, Andrews was taken to Atlanta and hanged.

MEANWHILE, Ross, Pittinger and the others at Knoxville were awaiting their fates. Pittinger, in his book, states that Ross apparently found out that he and others were to be hanged too. Pittinger surmises that Ross, a Mason, was tipped off by means of secret signs by Southerners of the same order—but Ross never admitted this.

The Knoxville prisoners contemplated escape. But they were swayed by one of the prisoners who pointed out that if they did nothing they might be released if the war should end soon (which some of them thought would).

However, the prisoners were suddenly removed to Atlanta. While in the city jail, their food rations were reduced to the starvation point, according to Pittinger's book.

Then, on the 18th of June, the

Adlai Stevenson Labeled 'Egghead' Turned Politician

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, the man nominated for the presidency for the second time by the Democrats, is an egghead turned politician.

He is a witty man in an arena where deadpan earnestness pays off more often. He all but spurned the nomination in 1952. He fought tooth and nail for it in 1956.

There are some political parallels to Stevenson. Woodrow Wilson was an intellectual—indeed, a college president. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a well-to-do man with an itch for public office. Abraham Lincoln was a fast man with a funny story.

Still, no previous American political figure has combined all the special ingredients that go into the complex makeup of Adlai Ewing Stevenson.

Many a professional politician doesn't know what to make of Stevenson—any more than Stevenson seems to understand some of the pros.

The old pro himself, former President Truman, went all out for Adlai in 1952—though with misgivings, as it later developed. This time Truman went all out for Averell Harriman. He said Stevenson couldn't win without help.

Whose help?

"The old man from Missouri", grinned Missouri's Harry Truman. This old relationship between Stevenson and Truman points up the unusual position in which Stevenson finds himself.

Many Republicans pictured him in '52 as a head-in-the-clouds liberal, a captive of the trade unions and Americans for Democratic Action.

This year, Truman sought to write him off as a "moderate" and a "conservative."

The drama of the Stevenson-Truman split, one of the few things to enliven a sluggish convention, was long in the making. Four years, in fact, though you wouldn't have suspected it from Truman's campaign for Stevenson in 1952.

The general outlines of the pre-convention skirmishing that year are plain enough now from Truman's published memoirs and other sources.

Truman was ready long before hand to support Stevenson, then governor of Illinois.

In 1952, when he polled the largest vote of any unsuccessful candidate in American history, Stevenson was asked by a reporter if he meant to try again.

"Have that man's head examined," Stevenson said bleakly. But the presidential bug had bitten deep. It wasn't long before he was flailing away at the Eisenhower administration on order came. Ross and six others were to be hanged in a few hours. Before being taken to the scaffold, Ross is reported to have said, "Tell them at home... that I died for my country and did not regret it."

Ross' stature gained him the respect of a fellow Mason, Capt. Fuller—the conductor who had thwarted the raid. Fuller, who was present for the executions, came to the scaffold and shook hands with Ross.

PITTINGER reported that the seven men died bravely. Each of the raiders was awarded the first Medal of Honor ever presented.

(Information for this article was supplied by Mrs. Warren, who brought a copy of Pittinger's 1887 book — "Daring and Suffering: A History of the Andrews Railroad Raid Into Georgia in 1862"—to The Herald office, along with other background material.)

eign and domestic matters alike. The plain implication was that Stevenson felt he could do it better. Finally, after another nudge from Truman to declare his intentions, Stevenson announced last Nov. 15 that he'd like the nomination—and that this time he was ready to fight for it.

Four years had wrought changes in the former Illinois governor. The urbane but slightly distant platform speaker turned himself overnight into a handshaker who could all but out-estee Sen. Keft of Tennessee. And the 1952 leader of devoted bands of amateur politicians installed professionals to help his 1956 campaign and to a large extent let them run it.

These were surface changes. Adlai Stevenson at bottom seems largely the man he was in 1952—balding, of medium height, inclined toward a paunch, unconcerned with his wardrobe... a man given to puckish jokes and staccato laughter, yet a man who can be deadly serious about his beliefs.

It was often said that Stevenson took over the heads of the voters four years ago. The statement annoyed him at the time, but he has come to use shorter words and sentences since then. And he no longer feels obliged to lecture his audiences. Now, like any orthodox politician, he asks for votes.

A comparative newcomer to politics, Stevenson began seeking votes in 1948 when he took the governorship of Illinois from Republican incumbent Dwight H. Green by the biggest margin in the state's history.

Until then few Americans had ever heard of Stevenson, a comfortably well off man who went to Princeton and Harvard, worked a while on the family newspaper at Bloomington, Ill., practiced law and served in a few relatively minor government posts.

Millions of Americans probably still were unaware of Stevenson's existence when he was pushed into the forefront of Democratic possibilities in 1952.

For him, at 56, this is almost certainly the do-or-die presidential bid. To cash in on it, he has taken off his gloves—not only to shake more hands but to throw some bare-knuckle punches at the opposition. He still prefers issues to personalities. But if somebody starts yelling "Give 'em hell, Adlai," it is unlikely that he will wince.

This is a new public personality for Stevenson, a lawyer who—after a brief World I hitch in the Navy—served as an assistant to the secretaries of Navy and state, helped draft the United Nations Charter and acted in official roles with U.S. delegations to United Nations conferences.

Stevenson is the grandson and namesake of a vice president. His father, Lewis Green Stevenson, was a farm and mine manager and a power in Illinois Democratic politics. Young Adlai grew up in Bloomington, established a law practice in Chicago after his graduation from Northwestern University Law School there in 1926. He had several Washington jobs in the early New Deal years and was named a special assistant to the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox in 1941.

Stevenson's 1949-1952 tenure as governor of Illinois is a matter of controversy, like most state administrations. Critics have charged laxity and indecision. Supporters say the accomplishments included better schools and a lower state payroll.

Stevenson and his divorced wife, the former Ellen Borden, have three grown sons. The former governor is a Unitarian and has served on many philanthropic bodies. Besides a Chicago home he has a farm at Libertyville, Ill., where he likes to pitch hay and perform other farm chores. The farm, by the way, doesn't make a profit. Farmer Stevenson is in favor of rigid, high-level support prices.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Revenue from the Ohio Turnpike for the first seven months of this year totaled $7,940,829, the Turnpike Commission reports.

Income for July was $1,453,604, of which $1,161,632 was obtained from passenger car traffic. The July income from service stations and restaurants was $349,831.

The commission said 1,071,303 passenger cars and 113,659 trucks passed through the gates during July. This brought the seven-month totals to 4,504,116 automobiles and 784,666 trucks.

3 Indian Tribes Appealing To U.N.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Three Oregon Indian tribes, defeated repeatedly in court efforts to force the federal government to pay $10 million for lands they claim were confiscated, have turned to the United Nations.

Siuslaw, Coos Bays and Lower Umpqua petitioned the U. N. for membership and asked its aid "toward peaceable redress."

The tribes have been trying for 25 years to collect for lands their forefathers agreed to relinquish under a treaty negotiated in 1855.

In 1939, the U. S. Supreme Court rejected their contention the U. S. never ratified the treaty and failed to fulfill its obligations.

Illinois Gets Over Million Back In Fraud

CHICAGO (AP)—The state of Illinois has recovered more than $1 million from state funds pocketed by Orville E. Hodge, ousted state auditor awaiting sentence after pleas of guilty to misapplying state money.

Atty. Gen. Latham Castle, in announcing the amount of restitution made by the long-loving Republican state official, predicted the state will "recover all the money" taken by Hodge.

The amount of restitution effects the length of Hodge's prison sentence as set in federal court Wednesday. Hodge, who pleaded guilty to charges of misapplying more than $800,000 in funds of federally insured banks, was sentenced to 10 years, with the provision that another 10 years could be added if he failed to make satisfactory restitution.

Hodge, weakened and depressed by his ordeal, is under guard in a hospital in Springfield. He is to appear in Sangamon County court Monday for sentencing on his plea of guilty to charges of taking $637,000 in state funds.

Soil Bank 'Costly', To Ohioan, But He Says 'It's Worth It'

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's costing Ohio farmer Clay H. Stackhouse money to participate in the new soil bank program. He thinks it's worth it.

Stackhouse—a well known Ohio soil conservationist—has more than a mild interest in the soil bank. He is an administrator at the Agriculture Department.

He also is the operator of a 700-acre farm between Norwalk and Oberlin.

So when President Eisenhower signed legislation putting the soil bank in force, Stackhouse was ready. He put half of his 160 acres of corn into the "acreage reserve."

In other words, the government is paying him to let 80 acres of land that once produced corn lie idle.

Now it is right here that Stackhouse figures he is losing money. The government pays him $51.50 an acre to take the land out of production, estimating his corn yield at 55 bushels per acre.

"Actually," he says, "my yield on that land was 75 bushels an acre. At $1.50 a bushel (the support price on corn) I'd make more money growing the corn."

Then why participate?

"Well," says Stackhouse, "I feel I've got a responsibility as a farmer of getting rid of these surpluses. But also, by leaving the ground in grass, I can operate more profitably on a four-year rotation system."

"That is, by planting the same ground in corn every four years, I'll get a higher yield on the corn I do plant."

It's Stackhouse's opinion that an Ohio farmer with a 30-bushel per acre corn yield has the most to gain from the soil bank. With that kind of production, he says, you can't make a profit. But the government will pay you $27 an acre to take it into the bank.

Ohio farmers generally, in the view of another official at the department, participated rather well in the program this year.

Salesman Slugged, Robbed Of $13,000

CINCINNATI (AP)—Edward Koeninger, 62, told police he was slugged behind the right ear and robbed of a package he was taking to a bank yesterday. The package reportedly contained $700 in cash and $12,500 in checks.

Koeninger, a salesman for the Lon Bauer, Inc., automobile dealer, said he was struck while walking on Seventh Street between Broadway and Sycamore Street. He said he thought he recognized the robber.

Tennessean, 32, New VFW Chieftain

Holt, 32, is the youngest ever to take the office. He was elevated at yesterday's closing sessions of the 57th annual VFW encampment.

He served as senior vice commander last year and had no opposition for the post.

Fund Tells Lineup For Coming Drive

Ed Grigg To Direct Campaign; Other Agencies Again Invited

The Pickaway County Community Fund today announced its top leadership for the fall campaign and again invited other local agencies to join in the plan of one big annual drive for health and welfare contributions.

The fund organization now consists of five groups. In renewing its invitation to other agencies, it stressed the saving that can be achieved in the efforts of individual drive workers and the convenience for those willing to donate financial support.

George Roth, president of the fund's board of trustees, officially announced the election of Ed Grigg as general chairman of the 1956 campaign, led "over the top" last year by Dr. G. D. Phillips.

Roy Marshall has been designated campaign vice chairman. Marshall will have charge of solicitation work in the county areas outside Circleville. Others named to help lead this year's drive include:

MRS. GEORGE Barnes, vice-chairman of solicitation for Circleville's residential, school, professional and public employes groups; Larry Varble, vice-chairman of solicitation for business, industry, banking and other organizational groups in Circleville, and

Jim Carr, vice-chairman in charge of publicity, public information supplies and activities of the speakers bureau.

Headed by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adkins, the speakers bureau is contacting groups throughout Pickaway County for an opportunity to have spokesmen go before the various organizations and explain the fund's policy and program.

Agencies now covered by fund are: Pickaway County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Pickaway County Youth Canteen. The fund, in its statement, said:

"These agencies were the original group participating in last year's successful campaign. Other health and welfare agencies that can qualify and are operating in the county have been again invited to participate, with emphasis on the saving of efforts of those who solicit and making it easier for those who wish to give in many cases where payroll deduction or quarterly billing is preferred."

Advance solicitations for the fund this year will be launched in September, with final home solicitations being scheduled for the following month.

U.S., Soviet Envoys Meet; Suez Compromise Is Talked

LONDON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and Russia's Dmitri Shepilov conferred almost 90 minutes today on the possibility of a compromise over the future of the Suez Canal. They parted smiling.

Dulles was accompanied to the Soviet embassy by Russian-speaking Charles E. Bohlen, U. S. ambassador in Moscow, who acted as interpreter.

A reporter asked Dulles: "Is there any sign of a compromise?" Dulles threw back his head and laughed, but did not comment.

Then he drove off to the British Foreign Office and talked with French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Much of the hard bargaining of the 22-nation Suez conference is being done behind the scenes.

The issue as it stands after two days of sessions:

Police Patrol Portsmouth's Strike Area

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—Police have begun a "dark to dawn" patrol of struck Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. installations here in an effort to avert further violence.

Police Chief Hugh Rudity announced the move after a stoning of four company buildings here and in nearby New Boston and Sciotoville Thursday night by some 200 to 300 persons.

"The situation here has reached a serious stage," Rudity said.

The striking Communications Workers of America denied its members were responsible.

Meanwhile, in Cincinnati, negotiations between the union and the company bogged down. Federal Mediator Edward Phillips indicated he would try to get the two groups together again next week.

Phillips met with two union representatives Friday. Company officials said they would not attend further meetings while "acts of violence" persist.

About 600 company workers have been striking since July 15 in parts of 24 Ohio counties. The dispute over a new one-year contract centers around working conditions.

Spotlight Turns To Republicans Out In Frisco

GOP Convention Set To Start Monday; Nix-Nixon Move Eyed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republicans grabbed the political football from the Democrats today, confident their Eisenhower-Nixon combination can out-vote the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket chosen in Chicago by the Democrats.

GOP leaders said privately they were impressed with the "open" convention choice of Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee as the vice-presidential running mate of former Illinois Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

The Democrats focused attention on the vice presidential candidates by picking Kefauver in an open convention.

In Los Angeles, on his way here to seek re-nomination, Vice President Richard Nixon said Eisenhower is strong enough to carry the country regardless of who runs with him.

Harold Stassen, on a political vacation from his job as Eisenhower's disarmament assistant to plug for someone else to replace Nixon, arrived saying he was gaining ground.

Stassen espoused the almost hopeless task of displacing Nixon as the GOP's No. 2 man with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts.

Herter has declined the bid and said he won't let his name go before the convention at San Francisco's huge Cow Palace.

But nobody could foretell what the Republicans would do if they felt free, like the Democrats did yesterday, to choose anyone they felt like to run with Eisenhower, a President who has been seriously ill twice in nine months.

Eisenhower has said he likes Nixon, but the choice of his companion on the ticket is up to convention delegates.

Out at the Cow Palace, a lone man was silently, but with gestures and lip movements, practicing a speech.

This turned out to be Gen. Gov. Goodwin Knight of California who, satisfied that his welcoming address was OK, reported he still would accept any Eisenhower-headed ticket, whether shared by Nixon, a fellow Californian, or not.

Knight had refused to endorse Nixon.

Stassen, in arriving here yesterday, was asked whether Kefauver's selection as the Democrats' No. 2 man strengthened his anti-Nixon drive. He said "I never comment on action of the Democrats."

The trouble with any move to replace Nixon was that nobody else appeared to be an obvious recruit. Names mentioned included Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland, the man who placed Eisenhower's name in nomination in 1952, and Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey.

So dim were the prospects of anyone but Nixon as Eisenhower's running mate that nobody apparently paid any attention to Humphrey, the Ohio industrialist, when he arrived on the same plane with Stassen.

Sen. Edward Thyne of Minnesota, Stassen's home state, said he could see no possibility of Stassen "getting anywhere" with his lone Nixon campaign. Thyne, however, said the Democrats had picked their strongest possible ticket in Stevenson and Kefauver.

Meanwhile GOP platform-makers met in closed sessions to polish up a party declaration of principles designed to convince voters more than Democrats' platform pledges.

Idaho Poll Result Still In Question

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—The race for Idaho's Democratic senatorial nomination remained wire thin today as vote canvasses continued to alter the standings.

Besides the changes which may still be wrought by further corrections, there are still four tiny Idaho precincts which haven't reported their vote at all.

At last count, Frank Church, 32, Boise lawyer and a newcomer to Idaho politics, held a 52-vote lead over former Sen. Glen Taylor. Whoever wins will face incumbent Sen. Herman Welker (R-Idaho) in November's election.

2 Liners Collide

QUEBEC (AP)—The liners Homeric and Columbia collided in thick fog in Quebec Harbor today and the Columbia was reported damaged fairly heavily. No one was reported injured.

Dems Forgive And Forget All Now 'Madly For Adlai'

Kefauver Voted No 2 Dem Spot

CHICAGO (AP)—Homespun Estes Kefauver, frustrated twice in seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, today was on his party's national ticket as its vice-presidential nominee.

His victory yesterday was hard-won. He beat out youthful Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts on a second convention ballot after frantic floor maneuvering and last minute delegation vote switches.

The final count: Kefauver, Tennessee's senior senator, 755½; Kennedy, 589.

On Kennedy's motion, the Kefauver nomination was made unanimous. However, there was grumbling in the South, Kefauver's native area which had flocked en masse to Kennedy.

But in Convention Hall last night, there were no open signs of disunity as Kefauver got a big ovation in telling the shouting, standard-waving delegates he was ready to fight alongside presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson "four our party and its causes."

Kefauver's acceptance speech was delivered in the slow, sometimes halting manner that had become familiar to voters in all parts of the land during his tireless but unsuccessful campaigns for the presidential nomination in 1952 and again this year. Both times, he lost to Stevenson.

The tone Kefauver used was mild, but the words he aimed at Vice President Nixon were barbed. With-out mentioning the GOP vice president by name, Kefauver said he will "never demean that high office to traduce fellow Americans, to sow division and distrust."

This was an obvious reference to Democratic claims that Nixon, during the 1954 congressional campaign, impugned the loyalty of the Democratic party.

As Stevenson and Kefauver stood together before the convention, there was no trace of the personal rancor that marked their furious rivalry for delegate votes in a series of primaries last spring, particularly in Florida and California.

Kefauver spoke of Stevenson's "unusual gifts of intellect and wit" and Stevenson repaid the compliment, calling Kefauver "an honorable and able American."

They both jokingly complimented each other's fighting ability demonstrated in primary battles, won mostly by Stevenson.

In yesterday's neck-and-neck balloting, the 32 votes of Tennessee, his home state, went first to Kefauver's Senate colleague, Albert Gore. Later, they were cast for Kefauver.

Of the 334 convention votes cast by 12 Southern states, Kefauver got only 59 on the clinching roll call. Besides Tennessee, Kefauver votes came from only North Carolina and Florida. He got not a single vote from Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and Texas.

Kefauver promised to return to Ohio for the campaign. He captured half of Ohio's delegates to the 1952 convention that nominated Stevenson for president.

Party leaders said Stevenson also planned to campaign in Ohio. He barn-stormed the state four years ago.

Disalle came to the convention prepared to place Lausche in nomination for president as Ohio's "favorite son." But Lausche withdrew as the Stevenson bandwagon got rolling and Disalle ditched his prepared nominating speech.

But Disalle made up for it by making the televised speech that led to Kefauver's second-ballot nomination.

"Today, as a party, we face a great battle," Disalle told the convention. "The opposition will have money and media of propaganda on a scale we have never before met and we must depend on our efforts to get our message to the people who will make the decision."

"The farm problem is a primary issue in Ohio and the Tennessee senator has an excellent record on which to appeal to the people in rural areas."

Disalle, best known as former OPA price controller, expressed belief that farm interest, added to Democratic strength in most big cities, would put nominally Republican Ohio in the Democratic column next fall.

Acid-Throwing Boss Is Sought

Police Probing Deep Into Riesel Case

NEW YORK (AP)—Authorities probed deeper into the Victor Riesel case today in a search for the underworld mastermind of the acid attack that blinded the labor columnist.

FBI agents cracked most of the once baffling case yesterday when they seized two ex-convicts. Four other arrests followed.

But the shadowy figure who put up the money to finance the attack apparently was still at large.

The FBI said the wanted assassin, against Riesel sought to prevent the crusading newspaperman from telling a federal grand jury about labor racketeering.

None of those arrested was linked by police with Labor.

The hoodlum who hurled sulphuric acid into Riesel's eyes April 5 was slain last month with a bullet in his brain, the FBI said.

The slain man, Abraham Telvi, 22, was assassinated, police said, because some of the acid splashed on his face. The scars made him a marked man, "too hot" for the underworld.

He was said to have collected $1,000 for the attack.

The two ex-convicts under arrest are Joseph P. Carlinio, 43, and Gendolfo Miranti, 37.

AUTHORITIES said Carlinio was the front man for whoever arranged the attack. He was said to have received $180 to $200 persuading someone to fling the acid.

Miranti, the FBI said, pointed out the 41-year-old columnist to Telvi outside a cafe here.

Carlinio and Miranti were held in bonds of $100,000 each on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice. If convicted, they face a maximum of five years in prison.

Telvi's brother, Leo, 26, was held in $100,000 bail as a material witness. So was Mrs. Norma Carlinio, described by police as Carlinio's common-law wife.

In Ohio, FBI agents arrested George Moore, 41, and his wife Della, 42, as material witnesses. The government claimed Telvi hid out for a time at the Moore's Youngstown home.

U.N. Probers Eye Violence In Palestine

JERUSALEM (AP)—U.N. truce observers today pushed investigations of another flare-up of violence along the Israeli-Egyptian frontier.

Truce team members said nine Egyptian soldiers were killed in two Israeli attacks Thursday night inside the Egyptian-held Gaza strip. Gunfire was reported continuing yesterday. Egypt earlier charged Israel with the attacks.

The violence followed by a day a complaint from Israel that three Israeli soldiers and a woman were killed in an ambush of a bus in the Negev Desert southeast of the Gaza strip.

Truce supervisors were preparing a report on the outbreaks at the request of U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who negotiated the cease fire that eased fighting last April.

At his headquarters in New York, Hammarskjold warned both Egypt and Israel to avoid retaliatory attacks in violation of their ceasefire pledges.

Man, 74, Drowns

DAYTON (AP)—A fall into a shallow creek near his home resulted in the drowning yesterday of Curtis F. Clark, 74, of nearby Fairborn. He was walking on a pipe which spans the creek when he slipped, authorities said.

National Ticket Seen As Help In Rural Area For Ohio Dems

CHICAGO (AP)—Ohio delegates to the Democratic convention said today the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket will help the party's November election drive in rural areas.

The 70-member, 58-vote delegation played a key role in the nomination of Adlai Stevenson for President and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee for vice president at the five-day political show which ended last night.

"Our delegation is going home very happy," said Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo, the nominee for governor to succeed Frank J. Lausche. Lausche, rounding out five terms as governor, is running for U. S. senator.

"Kefauver will strengthen us immeasurably in Ohio, where we were the weakest in our appeal to the farmer," DiSalle added.

"The farm problem is a primary issue in Ohio and the Tennessee senator has an excellent record on which to appeal to the people in rural areas."

Disalle, best known as former OPA price controller, expressed belief that farm interest, added to Democratic strength in most big cities, would put nominally Republican Ohio in the Democratic column next fall.

'We Will Win' Is Stevenson's New Battle Cry

Delegates Hear 1956 Candidate Call For End To GOP 'Drifting'

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats, in a forgive-and-forget windup to their national convention, lined up behind Adlai E. Stevenson's "We will win" pledge to throw the Republicans out of Washington.

The delegates had been fighting one another all week, but they put on a big unity demonstration last night in the Stockyards International Amphitheater.

They cheered and applauded Stevenson, their presidential nominee, as he called for an end to "aimless drifting" in Washington and promised a campaign looking toward a "great, decisive era" of world progress.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who won a close and dramatic race with Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the vice-presidential nomination, shared the center of the stage with Stevenson.

Former President Harry S. Truman, who has had harsh things to say in the past about both the nominees, tacitly apologized to Stevenson for saying the 1952 nominee "can't win" over President Eisenhower in November.

ALMOST EVERYBODY who was anywhere in the Democratic party got into the harmony act before the show was over.

This was in contrast to hectic days before in which Truman backed Gov. Averell Harriman of New York for the nomination and tossed brickbats at Stevenson.

As the star of the televised presentation, Stevenson laid down the pattern of an aggressive campaign to sell a "new America."

"It will be a land, he said, where poverty is abolished, where freedom is made real for all without regard to race or belief or economic condition" and a new order "which everlastingly attacks the ancient idea that men can solve their differences by killing each other."

For the political problems of the day, Stevenson had some observations after 19 minutes of uproarious greeting by a convention that hadn't done much all-out cheering previously.

Stevenson told Truman, "I am glad to have you on my side again, sir."

Truman had touched off waves of laughter by saying earlier that "Some stupid fellow I won't name" had been predicting Stevenson couldn't beat Eisenhower.

Characterizing Stevenson as a "real fighter" although earlier in the week he had been saying the reverse, Truman told the delegates.

His Choice Of Free Car Is Opposed

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—William C. Yarnall, Saddle River, will have to get a court trial if he wants an $18,700 automobile instead of just any old car willed to him.

Yarnall, a New York insurance broker with two cars and a $35,000 home, was willed "an automobile chosen by him" by the late Miss Lucile Lorrimer in gratitude for his friendship and aid to her.

He promptly picked an $18,700 English Bentley, which put the executors of the estate up in arms. They said he hunted around for the "most expensive auto he could find" and wouldn't give it to him.

Yesterday Superior Court Judge G. Dixon Speakman refused to force the executors to give Yarnall his auto.

Judge Speakman said the bequest, although vague, was personal choice must be reasonable and that its reasonableness could be determined in a court trial.

Miss Lorrimer was the heir of a fortune, estimated at more than $1 million.

Ohio Hog Prices Holding Steady

COLUMBUS (AP)—Prices for hogs remained generally steady during the week except in Central Ohio where average prices were up 15 to 25 cents from the previous week.

The Bureau of Markets of the Ohio Department of Agriculture reported sow prices continued to improve over last week. Wholesale fresh pork prices showed some improvement Friday, although the trend was not reflected in live prices.

Receipts at the 12 major terminal markets were 265,000 head this week, 15,000 less than last week and 37,000 less than the corresponding week a year ago.

'Hot' Dresses Bring Hot Streamliner

NEW LAREDO, Mexico (AP)—Air conditioning on the streamlined Artec Eagle train wasn't working too well, and police found out why: It was stuffed with smuggled dresses.

Officials arrested a pullman porter and a passenger, suspected of trying to smuggle the merchandise to the interior.

"PICTURE OF ESTHER WILLIAMS TAKEN BY SLOW PHOTOGRAPH"

In 1939 a French painter named Louis J. M. Daguerre discovered a way to make permanent photographs on glass or metal which he modestly called Daguerrotypy. Nobody knows why he didn't just take his films down to the corner drug store, but it isn't important now because his invention started a number of multimillion dollar industries, including: Life Magazine, Blackmail, Marilyn Monroe and Birdie Making (for every portrait snapped there's gotta be a Birdie to watch). There are now over 50,000,000 amateur photographers in the U. S. who spend a billion dollars a year on equipment and turn out an average of 6.4 bum photos a week. When asked about all this, wealthy camera store owners, merely reply "C'est la Daguerre."

Family Type Farms Rated Vital Bulwark

Farmers Union Head Says They Help Check Communism

Members of the Pickaway County Farmers Union, at a charter night meeting held at Five Points, heard a warning that the family-type farm must be retained as a basis for the nation's agricultural life to help guard against the spread of communism.

The warning came from Joseph W. Fichter, chairman of the Ohio Farmers Union and top speaker at the gathering. The Farmers Union is a "national organization of farm families... built and controlled by farm families, and operating to build greater security for families to live, to own and to serve on the land."

Fichter told the Pickaway County members in part: "The Farmers Union stands four-square for the enactment of federal farm income protection legislation at 100 percent of fair parity for the family farm production of all farm commodities. Means of protection should include production payments in workable combinations with price supporting loans, purchase agreements, purchases and other methods."

"WE IN the Farmers Union believe that the family-type farm must be retained as the basis of our agriculture, for it is fundamental to our democratic society and one of our most effective protections against communism. We agree with a recent report of a Congressional Committee which states that the family farm constitutes the backbone of 'private enterprise' in agriculture."

"The family farmer cannot long survive in an economy in which he has to sell his products at the mercy of the 'open market' while purchasing the things he has to buy on a controlled market."

"The Farmers Union is convinced that basically the current farm problem is one of under-consumption, not over-production, and that we must find the wisdom to promote the ever-greater attainment and ever-wiser use of a growing abundance to meet the needs of the people in our nation and throughout the world. The reason we seem to have a surplus now is that the food needs of the people in our nation and in countries abroad are not being adequately met."

Selby Shoe Co. Control Is Sold

PORTSMOUTH — Control of Selby Shoe Co., manufacturer of women's footwear, has been purchased by three Brooklyn and Chicago men, Roger Selby, chairman of the board and son of the founder, said today.

Selby identified the purchasers as Morris Chaiken of Brooklyn, president of Chaiken and Co., chocolate manufacturers, and J. A. Pritzker of Chicago and his father, A. N. Pritzker. Selby said they bought 152,000 shares, slightly more than two-thirds of Selby's 225,500 outstanding shares for more than $3 million.

Newark Business Building Burns

NEWARK — Fire early today swept a two-story frame hotel and business building only one block from Public Square.

About a dozen patrons were routed from the 24-room Manhattan Hotel by the fire's outbreak about 4:30 a. m.

Fire Capt. John Young estimated loss to the building at $50,000, but was unable immediately to estimate the loss suffered by seven business establishments which occupied the first floor.

Ballou To Build Drive-In Movie North Of City

A new drive-in movie theater is to be built approximately two miles north of Circleville on Route 23, according to an announcement made today by William Ballou of 217 N. Pickaway St.

Ballou, who is heading the project, said the theater is scheduled to open next Spring. He said construction would begin immediately.

The theater will be called "North Star". It will have room for 400 to 500 cars and will be located on 10 acres of Ballou's own farm land on the west side of Route 23, between the Circleville Motel and Tink's Tavern.

There will be individual speakers for each car. A refreshment stand will be one of the top features of the new theater.

A "CINEMASCOPE" screen will be installed so that all the latest wide-angle movies can be shown, Ballou added.

This will not be Ballou's first venture into the drive-in movie theater business. He built one between Canton and Akron a while ago, but it is not in operation now.

Japanese Find Names Difficult

TOKYO — Sen. Estes Kefauver's nomination as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate today brought Japanese inquiries on how to pronounce his name.

Newspaper headline writers reduced it to phonetic characters read as "Kk-fuo-fua," or "Kipfuovua." That is the closest Japanese comes to duplicating the English sound of Kefauver.

Kefauver's Democratic presidential running mate is known in Japan as "Su-te-yun-sohn."

Kefauver pronounces his name "Key-faw-ver."

Company I Guardsmen Receive 'Excellent' Rating While At Camp

Company I, Circleville's National Guard unit of the 166th Infantry Regimental Combat Team, along with other companies of the third battalion, has received an over-all inspection rating of "excellent" for the first week of Summer training at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

Local guardsmen have been training there since Aug. 5. The unit is scheduled to return to Circleville Sunday.

The entire first week of training was closely checked by Second Army inspectors. The second and final week of training will be conducted in bivouac, when all Guard soldiers will eat and sleep in the field.

While in the bivouac area, the local infantrymen will undergo all phases of tactical exercises, including problems at the squad, platoon and company level. These exercises will also be checked by Second Army personnel.

REPORTS RECEIVED here indicate that the Circleville men are doing an excellent job in their training, especially in weapons firing. Crew-served weapons fired so far by the Company I men have included: 57, 75 and 105 millimeter recoilless rifles; 60 and 81 millimeter mortars; 3.5 rocket launchers; and light and heavy 30 caliber machine guns.

First Lt. Robert Shaw of 224½ N. Scioto St. received a superior rating from the Army inspectors for conducting a "squad field firing exercise". The field problem included all squad offensive-type tactics and was conducted with live ammunition.

Search Continuing For Queens Of Pumpkin Shows Since 1933

A search is still on for the Miss Pumpkin Show queens who have reigned since 1933, when the beauty event was first held.

Robert Colville, treasurer of the Pumpkin Show board, is trying to locate the queens so that they can be invited to attend the golden anniversary of the show, Oct. 17-20.

The first queen, Miss Lucille Heise in 1933, is now a resident of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. She has already notified Colville that she will be here. She told Colville she is postponing her usual Summer vacation in order to attend.

Colville has explained that he anticipates no difficulty in locating some of the queens who live in or near Circleville. He is anxious, however, to obtain the addresses of those who have moved from the district.

REGARDLESS of their residence, he pointed out, it would facilitate planning for the event if all the queens check with him by phone or mail to say whether they will be able to participate.

"Mr. Pumpkin Show" can always be located by calling his office—that of county treasurer.

All available records list the Pumpkin Show queens as follows:

Mr. Bush was born on Aug. 21, 1871. His parents were William Marion and Emma Dean Terflinger Bush. He never married.

Law Signed To Aid Children Of Dead Vets

Provides Assistance For Education Of Eligible Children

The President has signed a new law which will make children of deceased veterans eligible for government financial assistance to further their education, veterans service officer James Shea announced today.

Purpose of the newly signed law is to insure that children of deceased veterans will have equal educational opportunities they would have if the parent were still living. The new assistance program applies to children of veterans whose death was caused by disease or injury incurred in the armed forces during world wars one and two and the Korean conflict.

"Assistance is available to eligible persons after their 18th birthday, or their successful completion of high school, whichever comes first," the service officer noted. "The assistance ends on their 23rd birthday," he added.

The age limit will be extended if eligible persons are over 18 but under 23 on the effective date of this act. The law became effective June 29 this year.

"If individual age deadlines fall during the middle of a school term, persons in this case would be permitted to complete the term," Shea declared.

STUDENTS taking part in the assistance program will be entitled to 36 months of education and they will receive $110 monthly for the successful completion of each month's schooling.

Students attending school on a three-quarter time basis will receive $80 a month. Those attending on a one-half time basis will be allowed $50 per month.

The law states that educational courses may be taken in colleges and universities as well as schools below the college level. Regular high school training is not included in the act.

Courses below the college level must train students for definite vocational objectives. On the job training, on the farm training and correspondence courses are not allowed under the new law.

Service officer Shea stated that eligible persons may apply for this benefit at the local veterans service office located in the basement of the Pickaway County Courthouse.

Hollywood's Cold Shoulder Fails To Cool June Lockhart

HOLLYWOOD — What does a beautiful and talented young actress do when Hollywood tells her she's "not the type"?

June Lockhart went to New York and became a star in top television dramas and a panelist on the quiz shows "Down You Go" and "Who Said That?"

Now she's back on the sound stages doing a film which, though it's for TV, could mean a rebirth of her Hollywood career. She's co-starring with Dennis O'Keefe in one of CBS' "Playhouse 90" hour-and-a-half starting on the air in October.

The surroundings are familiar for June, who inherited her acting ability from her parents, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart. She made her movie debut at 12 after dancing at the Metropolitan Opera at 8. Her pictures as a teen-ager included "All This and Heaven Too," "Sergeant York" and "Meet Me in St. Louis."

But then, she recalled, producers and casting directors "Said I wasn't the Hollywood type. They said I should get married, stay home and cook. I guess they meant I wasn't flamboyant, wasn't the Marilyn Monroe or Lana Turner type."

The studio to which she was under contract, Eagle-Lion, folded. "Not trying to prove anything," she says, she went to New York—and got rave reviews in the play "For Love or Money." It ran a full season on Broadway. Television opened its doors, and June's life became hectic.

An elevator was held on one occasion so she could whisk from "Robert Montgomery Presents" to "Who Said That?," a quizzer based on memorable quotations.

For the three years it was on the air, June studied harder for it than for her dramatic roles, reading eight newspapers a day and two news magazines a week.

June married Dr. John Maloney, a Manhattan physician, and had two children. In between TV shows they even squeezed in a trip to Europe. "The more you do," June finds, "the more you can do; your capacity increases."

'We Will Win' Is Stevenson's New Battle Cry

gates not to worry about his forecast of Stevenson's defeat.

"Don't let that worry you," he said. "That's what people were saying about me in 1948."

KEFAUVER of the big smile and the big hand in presidential primaries had his moments in the spotlight, too.

Noting that he had won his own nomination in "a free and open convention," Kefauver said:

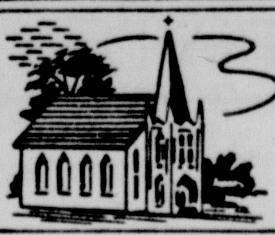

"I hope that it will set a precedent for the future. It will be very interesting to see whether the process is followed in San Francisco next week."

The Republicans open their convention there Monday.

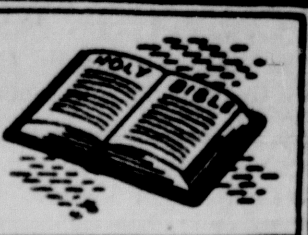

Stevenson himself paid some attention to this situation in a roundly receiving acceptance speech. He said Kefauver's victory in convention balloting had "dignified" the office of the vice presidency.

"I do not propose to make political capital out of the President's illness," Stevenson told the delegates. "His ability to fulfill the demands of his exacting office is a matter between him and the American people."

"But if the condition of President Eisenhower is not an issue as far as I am concerned, the condition and conduct of the President's office and of the administration is very much an issue."

BRING A FRIEND TO CHURCH WITH YOU

Special Program Planned Sunday At Calvary Church

The worship service for Sunday at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church will observe the "Summer Christmas Tree" program which is for the purpose of helping children around the world realize more fully the love of God and the understanding of neighbors far and near.

Because it is so difficult to send packages and gifts directly to the children in these many places, our offering is sent to the mission fields where it is used specifically for children's work. The offering objectives for this year are to be for the children's work in Indonesia, an Orphanage in Brazil, Osaka Suijo Rimpoken Orphanage in Japan and the Hip Woh School in Hong Kong.

The program is directed in each local church through the secretary for missionary education for children of the Women's Society of World Service. This secretary in Calvary Church is Mrs. Dale Rough.

"Christmas" hymns will be sung, in keeping with the program. These hymns include: "O Come All Ye Faithful", "Away in a Manger" and "Christ for the World We Sing".

The junior choir will sing an anthem entitled "Little Children Far Away". They will be accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Earl Millions.

Other features of the program will be as follows:

Carol Wise will lead the congregation in the call to worship.

The "Christmas Story", taken from Luke 2:7-20, will be read by the junior department as a choral reading.

Four of the junior children will represent visitors from the four places that have been chosen for our offering objectives. They will present a brief report of the needs there.

These visitors are: June Amann, representing Hong Kong; Brenda Isles, representing Brazil; Teddy Stewart, representing Japan; and Helen Brown, representing Indonesia.

Sunday school classes for both the children's department and adults will meet at 10.

Church Building In U.S. Still On Booming Uptrend

The church building boom in the United States, which has boosted church construction to 10 times the level of a decade ago, shows no signs of leveling off, American Iron and Steel Institute reported.

Within the next 10 years, an estimated 70,000 new churches will be built, at a cost of $7 billion.

Expenditures for religious construction during 1955 were a record of $760 million, 25 per cent more than the previous year. In 1956, they are expected to reach $900 million.

The expanded church building program was attributed to the rapid growth of decentralized suburban communities, the general rise in population and the resurgence of religious interest. In 1954 alone, these factors contributed to the creation of 5000 new congregations.

This demand for new churches will require thousands of tons of materials, such as stone, wood, brick and metals, including iron and steel. Among the most versatile and economical of available materials, iron and steel products are used extensively in modern church construction, the Institute noted. Church structures utilize the strength and durability of steel in columns, beams, reinforced concrete, floor joists, main supports and other ways.

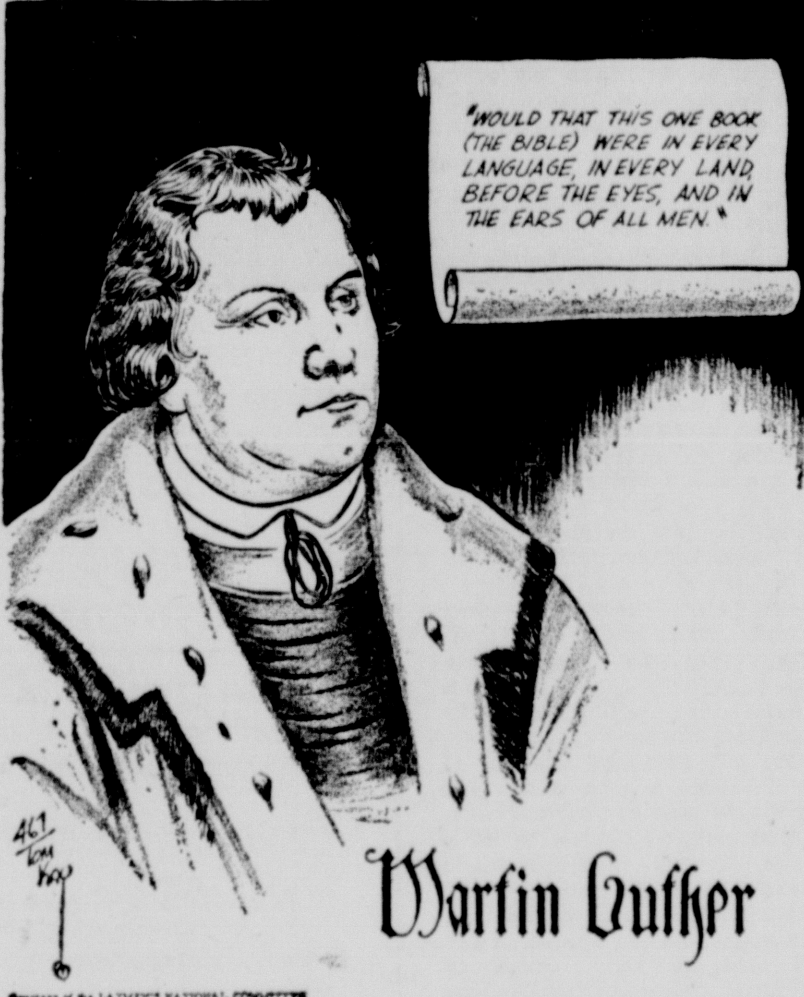

For example, a church under construction in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, has a 279-ton steel framework identical in structure to the bolted steel framework of many modern skyscrapers.

Bible Words To Live By

MATTHEW 22:37-38 "And he said to him, 'You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind. This is the great and first commandment.' " (RSV)

Jesus used the words of the Shema to point to the greatest commandment of all. In doing so, he brings to mind the fact that our relationship to God should be the first and primary concern of men. He also brings to mind that our commitment to God is not a partial commitment. Commitment to God must be total commitment of total self. It involves the commitment of the emotions; "with all your heart; it involves commitment of spiritual life; "with all your soul; it involves commitment of rational faculties; "with all your mind". We might add one of our own, the commitment of physical being "with all your strength". God must come first and our com-

HOW RESOURCEFUL ARE YOU ?

Puppies are generally more resourceful than people! They never take fences seriously. They find a way to get over or under the obstacle.

People take fences seriously. They usually have more respect for their limitations than for their abilities. That's why so many of us live in a narrow, discouraging world without promise or hope.

And even as we speak thrilling words like freedom and opportunity and ideals, some of us wonder secretly just what these are and how they may be attained.

There are spiritual resources in life which can enable any man to achieve ideals. They are the simple, commonplace commodities of religion—things like prayer and faith—but they are the keys to all attainment.

God gave us these resources to use. And He gave us churches to teach us how to use them. Forget your fences—discover your resources in Church next Sunday.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

NEVER TOO OLD

MORE AMERICAN adults than youngsters may be going to school this Fall. Enrollment in the nation's adult education classes is expected to reach 35 or 40 million. This compares with about 32 million students expected by the U. S. Department of Education to attend elementary or secondary public schools.

According to Dr. Paul Essart of the Adult Education Association, public affairs and parent education classes have had the most significant increase and have proved most popular.

This development of adult education classes has been called the "fourth level in the educational system." The other levels are the grade school, high school and college.

Many parents will be going to evening classes in the same schools their children attend in the day, others will be going to divisions of local colleges or universities, to voluntary and religious organizations, workshops and community projects.

There are many and diverse reasons for adults wishing to increase their knowledge of a subject. Some adults are drawn by the lure of a diploma or a degree. Others are interested in receiving training that will advance them in their daily work. Another motive is that many parents want to "keep up" with their children. Many parents who were unable to attend college themselves have worked hard to give their children that opportunity, so they are endeavoring to "improve themselves" through adult education.

Despite lack of funds and shortage of teachers, adult education is rapidly becoming an accepted and desirable facet of community life.

REDUCING USELESS TASKS

MIDWESTERN reservists training now at Camp McCoy, Wis., are leading a life and no guard duty. In fact, they aren't that would astonish old soldiers — no KP even taking physical training or long marches to firing ranges.

But most satisfying to the civilian soldiers must be the thought that 3,000 regular Army men and civilians are doing the dish-washing and pot-scrubbing duties and guarding the motor pools and ammunition dumps.

Is the Army getting soft? The commanding officer of one of the regiments now attending the camp, Col. Joseph H. Crawford of Kansas City, Mo., explains it this way: "We have just two weeks in camp each year. The important thing is training, and a man on KP and guard or any other detail is losing a chance to learn something important."

How true! Many a private who underwent training in World War II would agree heartily.

But what is amazing is that higher officers didn't see it. The German army did. It used limited service troops or civilians to do the chores so its troops could spend full time training.

Perhaps the peacetime Army clung to many of these practices simply because there isn't enough else to do. But this wise practice for reservists with limited training time might well be put into use by the Army if there is a new crisis requiring speeded-up training of troops.

NOT POCKETBOOK-DEEP

THIS COUNTRY may be experiencing a religious revival of sorts, but it apparently doesn't extend to the pocketbook level. In fact, the percentage of giving in relation to total personal income after taxes is slightly lower than it was in 1930, when the great depression was just starting.

According to government reports Americans in 1930 gave $875 million to their churches and other religious organizations, or about 1.17 per cent of their income after taxes.

In 1954, the most recent year for which complete reports are available, the American public gave $2.85 billion to religious organizations. But because of the enormous increase in income, that figure represents only 1.11 of total income after taxes.

That, by the way, is far below the so-called "Biblical tithe" which most denominations in principle list as the yardstick of giving. It is of interest, however, that

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

While the master minds at any convention are busy making their deals, the delegates are usually amused by a torrent of oratory. The orators are selected either because they are currently important or because they are prospectively significant. The greatest of such orators for all time was William Jennings Bryan who carved out a career for himself by his gift for speech.

Bryan had no microphone to help him and was fortunate in the possession of a glorious, soul-touching voice, the lower register of which was as moving as Edouard de Reszke's of those years. The microphone seems to have ruined oratorical voices because the speakers no longer possess great lung power but have learned rather to contort themselves within the narrow radius of the microphone, which, if it should unfortunately go dead for a moment, leaves upon the ear the inarticulate sounds of a pip-squeak.

William Jennings Bryan not only possessed a voice but he knew his native tongue, English, a rare advantage in any days. He was of the tradition of Daniel Webster and Henry Ward Beecher, men who spoke their language with precision and beauty. His "Cross of Gold" speech in the 1896 Democratic Convention unexpectedly won his nomination for the Presidency.

Bryan was a populist and what he said he meant and this is demonstrable by his consistency until he died after serving the Woodrow Wilson Administration. His span was long and his profession was oratory.

Bryan naturally came to mind as one listened to the keynote speech by Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee if only as a contrast. Bryan was eloquent; Clement was forensic. The difference is not only in the spirit of man but in the grasp of content. Clement harangued.

It was what could be called a fighting speech, but whom was Clement fighting? Certainly his "Nixon, Dixon and Yates" did not reflect unfavorably upon anyone but raised the ghost of "Martin, Barton and Fish," the Rooseveltian trio that was intended to amuse not to castigate.

Nor did it become a Democratic key-note to refer to President Eisenhower's illness, considering that Franklin D. Roosevelt was a very sick man but four times a candidate and elected and the fourth time obviously on the verge of death. And among the Democrats, Lyndon Johnson is a cardiac case and Stuart Symington has high blood pressure; and among the Republicans, Christian Herter suffers from arthritis.

When men pass 50, they get things and it really makes little difference. Harriman came out of an operation to run for the Presidency—an operation which a quarter of a century ago frightened the families of those who had to undergo it but today is routine.

So, it would seem that Clement stooped too low to make an unnecessary point which, were he not so young, he would not have thought proper. In fact, only he and Nixon seem to be whole, but who knows for how long? The sort of ad hominem oratory that Frank Clement practised is usually relished at the moment as one belly-laughs at seeing a fat man slip on a banana peel. If the Democrats criticize Nixon for his rough-and-tumble speech-making in 1954, Clement has outdone Nixon.

None of this is really necessary, particularly at a time when the President had to call leading Democrats away from their convention to lay before them the national peril in the Suez situation. Anyone can poke fun at John Foster Dulles who lays himself open all the time, probably because, doing his job, he does not care.

Nevertheless, a thoughtful man would try to remember that Dulles inherited a whole series of problems that have been in the making since World War I and are now coming to a head historically. A thoughtful man would not imperil Dulles' usefulness at a moment when he must negotiate with a greater number of antagonistic or difficult powers.

Frank Clement may have relished the cheers of his audience, but did he ask what kind of an audience Dulles will face in London on the 16th of this month when he needs to try to keep the United States out of war without damaging our entire defensive structure? Clement probably never gave it a thought. He was just delivering a "campaign speech," which no one is supposed to take seriously, not even he who delivers it.

more than half of the money Americans give to all the "worthy causes" goes to some religious organization. That figure has remained fairly constant over the years and in 1954 was 53 per cent.

Scientists say eventually man will be eating seaweed, but whether as a substitute or antidote for spinach is not clear.

CHAPTER 24

SO FAR as anyone could see, for the next thirty hours Chad did nothing about the lawsuit, nothing to counteract the effect of the newspaper account of the case and the accompanying photograph.

To all outward appearances, Miss Barr also followed her usual pattern. At six of the second evening, however, she was still in her office. Chad, coming in, he said for a pencil, lifted an eyebrow.

"I got a little behind in my paper work," she explained. Her make-up was fresh; she was out of uniform. Chad squinted at her and went on into his office.

In a few minutes he came out again. Miss Barr was bent over the desk, the light from the copper-nooded lamp flicking her hair into little flames. "Better knock off," said Chad gruffly.

"Well—"

"Theoretically, only the call desk is open here at night."

"You often come back, don't you?" Her gaze was challenging.

"How do you know?"

"A woman reads big things out of little signs," she said throatily.

Chad threw himself down into one of the steel-framed chairs. "A woman often reads big things out of no signs, too," he said pleasantly.

"I know," she agreed. "But I wasn't very good at it today."

"Oh, yes," he remembered, "you were going to snoop and pry."

"Everyone talked a lot," she admitted. "But no one said anything. Except of course to worry about you, and how this affair will hurt you."

"Kind of them to be concerned about?" he murmured.

"But," she said, looking shocked, "it will be exceedingly bad luck, Doctor, if this charge against you would stop your work."

"If there are grounds for that lawsuit," Chad argued, lazily, "my career should be ruined."

"I've seen this sort of thing before," said Hazel significantly. "Your case is different, of course."

This matter is connected with your work. The other I have in mind was a strictly personal thing—and it killed that doctor."

"My goodness, Barr!" His eyes were red-brown marbles.

"It did," she insisted. "It was an awful thing. I was that doctor's secretary . . . too."

"Upon my soul," said Chad

Mays. He closed his eyes for a moment. Anxious to pump this woman, but wary of her—needing to be wary, he thought. "Why do you say too?" he asked, his voice troubled. "How does that man's bad luck apply to me?"

"There's one more similarity," said Hazel archly. "Of course, it may be only gossip, but there is quite a lot of talk around to the effect that you and that same doctor's wife—his widow, it is, of course—are close friends. Very close. It has occurred to me, of course," she went on, "that if you have talked to Mrs. Van Horn about the clinic . . ."

Chad smiled, as if with great amusement. "I'm a great talker," he agreed. "But I'd certainly not consider giving her a report—of any kind."

"What—this is supposing, of course, Dr. Mays—but what if she came here to the clinic? Might not one of the clerks give her a certain report? From Miss Duckett down, all of us know her mother has given a lot of money to the clinic, and—"

"I think you're on the wrong track entirely," said Chad.

"I told you that I worked for Dr. Van Horn. And it is my opinion that she'd do much more than steal a report and use it."

"Oh, nonsense!"

"She did a great deal to hurt her husband."

He waited. Interested, but not appearing to be eager.

Hazel sat thoughtful for a minute. "I—"

"I don't like even to think about that awful time," she said sadly.

"I admire Dr. Van Horn very much. Not only as a brilliant doctor—which he was! But as the friend he was to me, and other people. Women were wild about him—he used to make jokes about the one who would catch him sometime when he was tired . . ."

Chad's shoe sole softly stirred the carpet pile into ridges.

Miss Barr was still talking. "The marriage happened quite suddenly—unexpectedly—even to me who knew so much about the doctor's affairs. But as soon as they got back from their honeymoon, I realized that something was wrong. I supposed it was a matter of Lacey's youth, and her being spoiled. He had a heart condition, too, which needed careful handling, and Lacey knew about that, I'm sure. But—to make a long story short—things did not go well. I was very worried, and after six months or so, "

McClure-Gifford Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Methodist Church Scene Of Rites

Miss Betty Jean McClure and Mr. Charles Dale Gifford exchanged wedding vows in First Methodist Church. The Rev. Charles Reed performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladioli and two seven-tiered candelabra surrounded by huckleberry foliage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McClure of 556 Springhollow Rd. and Mr. Gifford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gifford of Circleville Route 1.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of rose patterned, hand-clipped Chantilly lace with a skirt of tulle over satin ending in a chapel train. The elongated fitted bodice featured a high neck with a lace collar and her long sleeves formed bridal points over her hands. The bouffant skirt of tulle, accented with lace appliques, billowed over an old fashioned hoop. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was caught to a Queen's crown of lace, seeded pearls and sequins and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and Stephanotis and streamers with shattered carnations.

Miss Pat Nau was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were: Miss Mary Ann McClure, sister of the bride, Mrs. Charles Roberts, cousin of the bride and Miss Sandra Brecaunt.

Miss Nau wore a ballerina-length gown of aqua crystalite and the attendants were attired in peacock ballerina-length gowns of crystalite. The fitted elongated bodices had banded scoop necks and back panels from the necks to the hems. Large bows in the back topped the full skirts, worn over hoops.

Each wore a crystalite head band in shades to match their gowns, and fashioned with seeded pearls.

The maid of honor carried a spray of dark pink carnations and the bridesmaids' sprays were of light pink carnations.

Mr. Vernon Gifford served as best man for his brother and the ushers included: Mr. John Gifford and Mr. Orville Gifford, both brothers of the groom and Mr. Robert Rittinger.

The candelabras were lighted preceding the ceremony by Mr. Robert McClure, brother of the bride, and Mr. Thurman Smith.

Mrs. Irvin Leist offered selections at the organ and Miss Janet Martin of Springfield sang "Oh Promise Me," "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Approximately 200 guests from Chillicothe, Grove City, New Burlington, Hillsboro, Lakewood, Wellston, New Holland, Mendon, Versailles, Columbus, Celina, Springfield, Columbus and Circleville attended the reception held in the social rooms of the church.

Hostesses were: Miss Sue Smith, Miss Lorraine Gifford, Miss Ann Scott, Miss Ann Thor and Miss Mary Margaret Shoemaker.

The bridal table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. At each end of the long table, covered with a lace tablecloth, were arrangements of fringed chrysanthemums with a single white candle in the center surrounded with huckleberry foliage. The punch bowl was surrounded by pink rose buds.

For the wedding the bride's mother wore a powder blue silk chiffon dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and the bridegroom's mother chose a powder blue nylon dress with pink accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For the couple's honeymoon trip to Massachusetts, the bride wore a aqua, linen sheath dress with white accessories and the orchid from the bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Gifford is a graduate of Circleville High School and is now a senior at Miami Valley Hospital School of Nursing.

Mr. Gifford was graduated from Pickaway Township High School. He attended Ohio State University, Columbus, and served two years with the armed forces. He is now enrolled at Ohio University, Athens.

AN ECHO OF THE ORIENT in this casual resort or town costume from B. H. Wragge. The two-tone pink printed pure silk shantung sheath is slashed on both sides to a low hip point. Beneath is a white nubbed silk skirt. The miniature parasol print underscores the Eastern flavor.

The ninth meeting of the Salt Creek Livestock 4-H Club was held in the home of Terry Anderson.

Fifteen members were present for the session, which opened with the members giving the club pledge.

During the business meeting the group held a discussion of the club tour and the 4-H books.

The twenty four members of the Logan Elm Sunny Sewers 4-H Club presented their completed projects and a style review followed by a tea for their mothers and guests.

4-H Food Projects Judged In Fairgrounds Coliseum

There were 90 entries, of a possible 131, for the second pre-fair judging and placing of county 4-H food projects and demonstrations. To be eligible for entry, members were to have averaged an A in total project activity.

For this second big judgment day at the Pickaway County fairgrounds coliseum, arranged and supervised by Mrs. Leora Sayre, home economics agent, the judges were Miss Mabel Westervelt and Mrs. Emily Marks, home economics agents of Fairfield and Ross Counties.

The top ten in each classification were placed as follows.

Salads, Sandwiches and Summer Drinks, or a luncheon arrangement, was the first class with 1st place going to Mary Pennington, Joyce McPherson, 2nd; Medtrix Hix, 3rd; Nancy Stevenson, 4th; Betty McPherson, 5th; Marilyn Dudson, 6th; Peggy Wardell, 7th; Judy Ekers, 8th; Carol Sue Grable and Mildred Barry, 9th and 10th.

For the group competing and co-operating in the cakes and cookies project, Gloria Hamrick placed 1st; Nancy Wilson and Beverly McKenzie, 2nd and 3rd; Betty Fraser, 4th; Kay Bush, 5th; Marilyn Shell, 6th; Peggy Clark, 7th; Linda Baum, 8th; Janet Grissom, 9th; and Jane Smith, 10th.

The exhibit of Breads revealed that baking not in the definitely sweet category was popular and of good quality. Placements in "Baking Is Fun" were: Sally Willis, Jeannie Walker, Judy Fee, Helen Allen, and Barbara Diffendahl, 1st through 5th, in the order listed.

For "Yeast Bread, Rolls, and Pies", Betty Lou Leist received highest rating, Sylvia Smith and Jeannie Edgington, 2nd and 3rd; Judy Fee, 4th; Sally Montgomery and Anna Mae Styers, 5th and 6th; Ethel Gilmore, 7th; Karen Ayers, 8th; Virginia Beavers and Scatia Kay Skinner, 9th and 10th.

For the advanced projects involving Complete Meals few members carried the projects. Special recognition went to Patty Steele and Barbara Storer for their edible and poster exhibits in "A 4-H Member Prepares Meals".

The "Let's Cook" project was very satisfactorily completed and exhibited by Jeannie Walker. Stephen Hatfield completed but did not exhibit for county.

In the Food Preservation placements were in two categories. In the Freezing project Velma Alice Kuhn received 1st place; Janet Acord, 2nd; Jane Little and Yvonne Beavers, 3rd and 4th.

For Canning 1st place went to Beverly McKenzie; Carolyn Newton and Carol Baum, 2nd and 3rd; and Virginia Barnes, 4th.

An interesting highlight for the day was a Flower Arrangement from the garden of Handy Hatfield who carried a Flower Garden project.

In the Demonstration Revue, which concluded this session of home economics recognition and placing, Carol Baum and Carolyn Newton were rated 1st for their team demonstration on "Canning Tomatoes". A close 2nd was given Alice Baum and Velma Alice Kuhn for a zipper demonstration "It's a Breeze".

For individual demonstrations, Velma Alice Kuhn rated 1st for her demonstration on "Fresh Peaches in January," 2nd place went to Judith Dennin for "Little Acts Prevent Big Disasters," and 3rd, "Stay Stitching in Time" by Carolyn Newton.

There are a limited number of pre-registered realted entries for each county for state fair at which more than 3,000 Ohio 4-H boys and girls will participate.

In keeping with this and by virtue of their county exhibit ratings, the following members will go to state fair for exhibit-interviews: Gloria Hamrick, Nancy Wilson, Betty Lou Leist and Sally Willis.

For Demonstrations: Judy Dennin, Carolyn Newton and Velma Alice Kuhn.

Willing Workers Hold Meet With Mrs. Jacob Glitt

The home of Mrs. Jacob Glitt was the scene of the latest meeting of the Willing Worker Class of Pontius Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. Glitt giving the theme, "I Shall Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself."

The devotions were in charge of Mrs. A. W. Bosworth, who led the group in singing, "Lifted Me" and read the scripture lesson from the 91st Psalm followed by prayer.

Mrs. Ethel Klingensmith offered prayer following a reading and a poem entitled, "Today," was given by Mrs. Bosworth. The devotions closed with members singing "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Ohio High School Football Stars Battle To 19-19 Tie

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The kids who will be cavorting the collegiate gridirons in a couple of years put on quite a show Friday night as Ohio's scholastic stars battled to a 19-19 deadlock in the 11th annual High School North-South game.

A crowd of some 14,000 watched the Rebels take a touchdown lead three times, only to have the Yankees match each score. The North-ers tied it at 19-19 with only 2:10 minutes to go, and then missed the conversion try which would have given them their sixth win against four losses and a tie in the colorful series.

Although 14 of the 50 youngsters on the All-Star squads — seven from each team — will enroll at Ohio State this fall, most of the game's standouts have chosen other schools.

George Izo, Barberton's all-state quarterback who completed 7 of 13 passes for 127 yards, one for a touchdown, is headed for Notre Dame. He also scored a touchdown for the North and gained 23 yards on nine "sneaks."

Ron Burton, Springfield's scintillating halfback, zoomed 120 yards in 16 tries for the South to lead the ground-gainers. He's going to Northwestern. Ted Aucreman of Lancaster, who picked up 103 yards for the South in 20 tries will enroll at Indiana. Paul McGuire of Youngstown Ursuline, who scored one of the North's scores on a 23-yard pass from Izo, is going to Dayton, and Willie Mack of Mansfield, who scored the other Yankee marker and led his team on the ground with 36 yards in eight attempts, has chosen Bowling Green.

Ron Vitatoe of Hamilton, who scored a touchdown on a sneak play and passed to Columbus East's Al Long for a 16-yard score, is going to Ohio State, as is Long.

The teams were the most evenly matched in the 11-year history of the classic sponsored by the Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn. Each team scored once after an intercepted pass, each counted after a recovered fumble, and each went 69 yards for its third marker.

Each team scored a touchdown in the first, second and fourth periods, the South counting first in each stanza, and the North counting immediately. The Rebels, coached by Ralph Webster of Columbus East, tried to crack the line for the first conversion but fell short. The North booted its first, and led 7-6 at the end of the first period, 13-12 at the half, and then missed a chance to win after the South had taken a 19-13 edge in the final quarter. With only about two minutes to play, the North scored in three plays from 39 yards out after Clarence Bruton of Youngstown East had recovered a fumble. But a conversion try by Bob Young of Van Wert was inches wide and the Yanks had to settle for a tie.

The South had a 249 to 132-yard edge on running plays, but the Yanks had a 127 to 38 advantage through the air. Izo put on a great show, twice hitting receivers with long passes while in the grasp of charging defenders. The Rebels had an 18-13 advantage in first downs.

The game will be held at Canton the next three years.

North 7 6 0 6-19
South 6 6 0 7-19

North scoring—touchdowns: McGuire (23, pass from Izo), Izo (1, sneak); Mack (1, end run); Conversion: Young.
South scoring—Touchdowns: Vitatoe (1, sneak); Long (16, pass from Vitatoe); Aucreman (2, plunge). Conversions: Gaiters.

Willie Mays Eyes Home Run Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays is in sight of Dale Long's home run record with five in as many successive games but Pittsburgh manager Bobby Bragan has no intention of walking Willie to protect his first baseman's mark.

Earlier in the season Long hit eight in eight games and Mays will be shooting for that mark in the next three games against the Pirates. The Giants centerfielder hit a homer in his fifth straight game as New York defeated Pittsburgh 5-3 last night.

"We'll pitch to Willie," said Bragan. "We're not going to walk him just to protect Long's record."

Miami To Honor Concert Pianist

OXFORD (AP) — Miami University will confer honorary degrees on an alumnus and a pianist at its summer commencement, Aug. 31.

They are Dr. David M. Delo, 1926 Miami graduate who is president of Wanger College, Staten Island, N. Y., and Robert Goldsand, concert pianist who has operated a piano workshop on Miami's summer program several years.

Columbus Cop Dies, Victim Of Gunfight

COLUMBUS (AP) — Police said Benjamin O. Franklin, 26, fatally wounded a 31-year-old Columbus policeman and wounded a second patrolman, then shot himself to death as other officers closed in on him yesterday.

Patrolman Thomas E. Webb, a veteran of six years on the force, died in a hospital about three hours after the gun battle on the city's east side. A bullet was lodged in his brain. He is the first Columbus police officer to be killed in a gun battle since 1938.

Webb's rookie partner, Patrolman Melvin M. Grimm, 25, was reported in fair condition.

Webb and Grimm had gone to an apartment house in answer to a call from Franklin's sister-in-law. She said Franklin had threatened to kill his wife.

In a struggle, Franklin wrestled away Grimm's revolver and shot Grimm. The latter staggered outside and got two delivermen to call for help on a police car radio.

Franklin shot Webb, then went to the apartment where his wife had barricaded the bedroom door. The wife, Bessie, 21, dropped her two small children from the second-story window. Then she and two other women relatives also jumped out the window.

Some 50 officers arrived and began firing tear gas into another bedroom where Franklin was trapped. They heard a shot and found Franklin slumped dead on the floor, a bullet wound in his temple.

Bank Teller Scared, But Sounds Alarm

CLEVELAND (AP) — "Of course I was scared," said Fred E. Vopal, 55, bank teller at a branch of the Society For Savings, "but there seemed nothing else to do."

What he did was to walk calmly to a back room and set off a burglar alarm, when a man handed him a note, reading "hand over all your money." The would-be robber fled with the note, past about 50 customers.

One Of Andrew's Raiders Great-Uncle Of Circleville Woman

Marion Ross Executed With Seven Others

Raid During Civil War In Southern Georgia Nearly Successful

(Little mention has been made about the men who were executed for their part in the daring Andrews Raid during the Civil War. One of the eight men hanged was Marion Ross, great-uncle of Mrs. Roscoe Warren of 213 Linden Lane, who was later awarded the Medal of Honor. Mrs. Warren's father Marion E. Ruffner, was named for Ross.)

In late April of 1862, a group of 21 Union Army volunteers—led by a secret agent, James J. Andrews—disguised themselves as civilians and made their way deep into the South. Their purpose was to steal a train, ride back north and burn enough bridges to put the rail line out of commission and virtually split the South in two.

A previous attempt at accomplishing this feat was unsuccessful even before it got well underway. But at Big Shanty, Ga., this second attempt netted the raiders a train and they proceeded north.

However, due to the persistent pursuit by the stolen train's conductor, William A. Fuller, plus some unforeseen circumstances, the raiders' engine, the "General", came to a halt near Ringgold, Ga., 90 miles from Big Shanty. All of the men scattered.

Within a few days, all the raiders, including Andrews, were caught. Six were later paroled, eight escaped from jail in Atlanta, Ga., where Andrews and seven others were executed.

MARION ROSS was one of those executed. Ross was sergeant major of the 2nd Ohio Infantry Regiment and the ranking non-commissioned officer on the raid.

After being captured, most of the raiders were finally assembled at the old Swims Jail in Chattanooga, Tenn. Here, they were put in a "cell" beneath the floor, floor, which 22 prisoners were forced to share. The room was 13 feet square and about the same in height.

It was here that Andrews, Ross and another raider joined the group. Ross helped ease the confinement by having the men sing.

One day, some of the raiders were taken to Knoxville, Tenn. for trial. These included Andrews, Ross and William Pittinger, who authored the book upon which the movie, "The Great Locomotive Chase", is based.

While at Knoxville, Andrews and another raider escaped. It was now the early part of June, nearly a month and a half after the raid. But both men were recaptured. Later, Andrews was taken to Atlanta and hanged.

MEANWHILE, Ross, Pittinger and the others at Knoxville were awaiting their fates. Pittinger, in his book, states that Ross apparently found out that he and others were to be hanged too. Pittinger surmises that Ross, a Mason, was tipped off by means of secret signs by Southerners of the same order—but Ross never admitted this.

The Knoxville prisoners contemplated escape. But they were swayed by one of the prisoners who pointed out that if they did nothing they might be released if the war should end soon (which some of them thought would).

However, the prisoners were suddenly removed to Atlanta. While in the city jail, their food rations were reduced to the starvation point, according to Pittinger's book.

Then, on the 18th of June, the

Adlai Stevenson Labeled 'Egghead' Turned Politician

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, the man nominated for the presidency for the second time by the Democrats, is an egghead turned politician.

He is a witty man in an arena where deadpan earnestness pays off more often. He all but spurned the nomination in 1952. He fought tooth and nail for it in 1956.

There are some political parallels to Stevenson. Woodrow Wilson was an intellectual—indeed, a college president. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a well-to-do man with an itch for public office. Abraham Lincoln was a fast man with a funny story.

Still, no previous American political figure has combined all the special ingredients that go into the complex makeup of Adlai Ewing Stevenson.

Many a professional politician doesn't know what to make of Stevenson—any more than Stevenson seems to understand some of the pros.

The old pro himself, former President Truman, went all out for Adlai in 1952—though with misgivings, as it later developed. This time Truman went all out for Averell Harriman. He said Stevenson couldn't win without help.

Who else? "The old man from Missouri", grinned Missouri's Harry Truman. This old relationship between Stevenson and Truman points up the unusual position in which Stevenson finds himself.

Many Republicans pictured him in '52 as a head-in-the-clouds liberal, a captive of the trade unions and Americans for Democratic Action.

This year Truman sought to write him off as a "moderate" and a "conservative."

The drama of the Stevenson-Truman split, on of the few things to enliven a sluggish convention, was long in the making. Four years, in fact, though you wouldn't have suspected it from Truman's campaign for Stevenson in 1952.

The general outlines of the pre-convention skirmishing that year are plain enough now from Truman's published memoirs and other sources.

Truman was ready long beforehand to support Stevenson, then governor of Illinois.

In 1952, when he polled the largest vote of any unsuccessful candidate in American history, Stevenson was asked by a reporter if he meant to try again.

"Have that man's head examined," Stevenson said bleakly. But the presidential bug had bitten deep. It wasn't long before he was flailing away at the Eisenhower administration on foreign policy.

order came. Ross and six others were to be hanged in a few hours. Before being taken to the scaffold, Ross is reported to have said, "Tell them at home...that I died for my country and did not regret it."

Ross' stature gained him the respect of a fellow Mason, Capt. Fuller—the conductor who had thwarted the raid. Fuller, who was present for the executions, came to the scaffold and shook hands with Ross.

PITTINGER reported that the seven men died bravely. Each of the raiders was awarded the first Medal of Honor ever presented.

(Information for this article was supplied by Mrs. Warren, who brought a copy of Pittinger's 1887 book—"Daring and Suffering: A History of the Andrews Railroad Raid Into Georgia in 1862"—to The Herald office, along with other background material.)

eign and domestic matters alike. The plain implication was that Stevenson felt he could do it better. Finally, after another nudge from Truman to declare his intentions, Stevenson announced last Nov. 15 that he'd like the nomination—and that this time he was ready to fight for it.

Four years had wrought changes in the former Illinois governor.

The urbane but slightly distant platform speaker turned himself overnight into a handshaker who could all but out-estee Sen. Ke-fauver of Tennessee. And the 1952 leader of devoted bands of amateur politicians installed professionals to help his 1956 campaign and to a large extent let them run it.

These were surface changes. Adlai Stevenson at bottom seems largely the man he was in 1952—balding, of medium height, inclined toward a paunch, unconcerned with his wardrobe... a man given to puckish jokes and staccato laughter, yet a man who can be deadly serious about his beliefs.

It was often said that Stevenson took over the heads of the voters four years ago. The statement annoyed him at the time, but he has come to use shorter words and sentences since then. And he no longer feels obliged to lecture his audiences. Now, like any orthodox politician, he asks for votes.

A comparative newcomer to politics, Stevenson began seeking votes in 1948 when he took the governorship of Illinois from Republican incumbent Dwight H. Green by the biggest margin in the state's history.

Until then few Americans had ever heard of Stevenson, a comfortably well off man who went to Princeton and Harvard, worked a while on the family newspaper at Bloomington, Ill., practiced law and served in a few relatively minor government posts.

Millions of Americans probably still were unaware of Stevenson's existence when he was pushed into the forefront of Democratic possibilities in 1952.

For him, at 56, this is almost certainly the do-or-die presidential bid. To cash in on it, he has taken off his gloves—not only to shake more hands but to throw some bare-knuckle punches at the opposition. He still prefers issues to personalities. But if somebody starts yelling "Give 'em hell, Adlai," it is unlikely that he will wince.

This is a new public personality for Stevenson, a lawyer who—after a brief World I hitch in the Navy—served as an assistant to the secretaries of Navy and state.

helped draft the United Nations Charter and acted in official roles with U.S. delegations to United Nations conferences.

Stevenson is the grandson and namesake of a vice president. His father, Lewis Green Stevenson, was a farm and mine manager and a power in Illinois Democratic politics. Young Adlai grew up in Bloomington, established a law practice in Chicago after his graduation from Northwestern University Law School there in 1926. He had several Washington jobs in the early New Deal years and was named a special assistant to the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox in 1941.

Stevenson's 1949-1952 tenure as governor of Illinois is a matter of controversy, like most state administrations. Critics have charged laxity and indecision. Supporters say the accomplishments included better schools and a lower state payroll.

Stevenson and his divorced wife, the former Ellen Borden, have three grown sons. The former governor is a Unitarian and has served on many philanthropic bodies. Besides a Chicago home he has a farm at Libertyville, Ill., where he likes to pitch hay and perform other farm chores. The farm, by the way, doesn't make a profit. Farmer Stevenson is in favor of rigid, high-level support prices.

The amount of restitution effects the length of Hodge's prison sentence as set in federal court Wednesday. Hodge, who pleaded guilty to charges of misapplying more than $800,000 in funds of federally insured banks, was sentenced to 10 years, with the provision that another 10 years could be added if he failed to make satisfactory restitution.

Hodge, weakened and depressed by his ordeal, is under guard in a hospital in Springfield. He is to appear in Sangamon County court Monday for sentencing on his plea of guilty to charges of taking $637,000 in state funds.

3 Indian Tribes Appealing To U.N.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Three Oregon Indian tribes, defeated repeatedly in court efforts to force the federal government to pay $10 million for lands they claim were confiscated, have turned to the United Nations.

Siuslaw, Coos Bays and Lower Umpqua petitioned the U. N. for membership and asked its aid "toward peaceable redress."

The tribes have been trying for 25 years to collect for lands their forefathers agreed to relinquish under a treaty negotiated in 1855.

In 1939, the U. S. Supreme Court rejected their contention the U. S. never ratified the treaty and failed to fulfill its obligations.

Illinois Gets Over Million Back In Fraud

CHICAGO (AP)—The state of Illinois has recovered more than $1 million of state funds pocketed by Orville E. Hodge, ousted state auditor awaiting sentence after pleas of guilty to misapplying state money.

Atty. Gen. Latham Castle, in announcing the amount of restitution made by the fun-loving Republican state official, predicted the state will "recover all the money" taken by Hodge.

The amount of restitution effects the length of Hodge's prison sentence as set in federal court Wednesday. Hodge, who pleaded guilty to charges of misapplying more than $800,000 in funds of federally insured banks, was sentenced to 10 years, with the provision that another 10 years could be added if he failed to make satisfactory restitution.

Hodge, weakened and depressed by his ordeal, is under guard in a hospital in Springfield. He is to appear in Sangamon County court Monday for sentencing on his plea of guilty to charges of taking $637,000 in state funds.

Soil Bank 'Costly', To Ohioan, But He Says 'It's Worth It'

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's costing Ohio farmer Clay H. Stackhouse money to participate in the new soil bank program. He thinks it's worth it.

Stackhouse—a well known Ohio soil conservationist—has more than a mild interest in the soil bank. He is an administrator at the Agriculture Department.

He also is the operator of a 700-acre farm between Norwalk and Oberlin.

So when President Eisenhower signed legislation putting the soil bank in force, Stackhouse was ready. He put half of his 160 acres of corn into the "acreage reserve."

In other words, the government is paying him to let 80 acres of land that once produced corn lie idle.

Now it is right here that Stackhouse figures he is losing money. The government pays him $51.50 an acre to take the land out of production, estimating his corn yield at 55 bushels per acre.

"Actually," he says, "my yield on that land was 75 bushels an acre. At $1.50 a bushel (the support price on corn) I'd make more money growing the corn."

Then why participate? "Well," says Stackhouse, "I feel I've got a responsibility as a farmer of getting rid of these surpluses. But also, by leaving the ground in grass, I can operate more profitably on a four-year rotation system."

"That is, by planting the same ground in corn every four years, I'll get a higher yield on the corn I do plant."

It's Stackhouse's opinion that an Ohio farmer with a 30-bushel per acre corn yield has the most to gain from the soil bank. With that kind of production, he says, you can't make a profit. But the government will pay you $27 an acre to take it into the bank.

Ohio farmers generally, in the view of another official at the department, participated rather well in the program this year.

Salesman Slugged, Robbed Of $13,000

CINCINNATI (AP)—Edward Koeninger, 62, told police he was slugged behind the right ear and robbed of a package he was taking to a bank yesterday. The package reportedly contained $700 in cash and $12,500 in checks.

Koeninger, a salesman for the Lon Bauer, Inc., automobile dealer, said he was struck while walking on Seventh Street between Broadway and Sycamore Street.

He said he thought he recognized the robber.

Tennessean, 32, New VFW Chieftain

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Copey Thurman Holt of Chattanooga, Tenn., has been elected commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Holt, 32, is the youngest ever to take the office. He was elevated at yesterday's closing sessions of the 57th annual VFW encampment.

He served as senior vice commander last year and had no opposition for the post.
